MINISTRY AND EJECTMENT ORDERS.—Limerick City Workers' Housing Association Executive has received a letter from the Ministry for Home Affairs in reference to ejectment decrees granted by the Commissioners against two persons living in the city. The letter expressed the Minister's regret that he had legally no power to interfere or to instruct the Under-Sheriff not to execute these decrees. The execution of the decrees could be delayed only by arrangement between the defendants and the plaintiffs' solicitors.

ULSTER.

DONEGAL MIDWIVES' SALARIES.—The Local Government Department has written to the Donegal Board of Health in regard to the salaries paid to dispensary midwives in the county, stating that the Minister does not consider that the Board is justified in postponing the matter for the attention of the new Board. The present salaries of the midwives, said the letter, are extremely small, and the Board of Health should deal with the question without delay. The Secretary of the Irish Nurses' and Midwives' Union wrote stating that the salaries in Donegal are very low and unequal, ranging from £20 to £45, and that, if the Board could not see its way to pay the full scale immediately, the salaries of all the nurses should be levelled up to £50 a year, rising by £2 annually to £67, which the Local Government Department would approve. The matter was referred to a committee to report to the next meeting.

NEW WORKS IN DONEGAL. — At the half-yearly meeting of the Donegal County Council, on Tuesday, a communication was received from the Ministry of Local Government stating that the limits of rate expenditure did not permit of the great number of new works proposed by the rural council, particularly in the south end of the county. It was agreed to go through the list of proposals, and the majority of the works were passed. On the application of the Stranorlar District Council, the Council agreed, subject to the sanction of the Local Government Board, to recommend the extension of the limit of road expenditure for that district to £2,500. The Council also approved of the resolution of the Glenties Council for the allocation of £500 for repairs to Gweebarra Bridge.

SURCHARGES REMITTED. — Donegal Board of Health has been informed that the surcharges made by the auditor on the accounts of the Ballyshannon District Hospital for the half-years ended on March 31 and September 30, 1923, had been remitted.

The Senate passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Francis Adens Heron, Holywood, for his gift of £1,000 to erect entrance gates at the University.

INCOMPLETE PENSIONS APPLICATION.—Denis O'Brien, Irvinestown, was fined 20s. and costs at Enniskillen for failing to give a complete return of all his lands and profits when applying for an old-age pension for his wife. The defence was that the farm that he omitted to return showed no profit.

CATTLE IN STREETS ON FAIR DAYS.—Ballygawley, Co. Tyrone, magistrates decided to take no action on a petition, requesting that an order should be made that cattle are to be confined to the fair green on fair days.

AGED 10; 52 TIMES AT SCHOOL.—Frederick Downes, aged ten, whose foster parent was fined at Ballygawley, Co. Tyrone, for not sending the boy regularly to school, was stated to have attended school on only 52 days in his life.

CINEMA PROPRIETOR'S DEATH. — Frederick Stewart, proprietor of a cinema in the High street, Belfast, was found lying dead in a stream near the Oldpark road tram terminus yesterday afternoon. It is thought that he may have slipped from a footpath on the top of an embankment overlooking the water.

DIRTY EGGS AT FINTONA.—Tyrone Committee of Agriculture decided to take no action on a report made by a Government inspector that on a recent visit to Fintona market, 90 per cent. of the eggs were found to be dirty.

GOLF.

THE CLOSE CHAMPIONSHIP.

MACCORMACK AND SOULBY IN THE FINAL.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

NEWCASTLE, CO. DOWN, Wednesday.

During the night rain fell heavily and a strong wind sprung up, and the conditions prevailing on the links to-day had undergone a complete and disagreeable change. They did, however, make for a better test of golf and gave to the really good player a pull over his less accomplished rival, but even Dr. MacCormack found it no easy matter to control the ball in the heavy, gusty wind in the evening. In the end the two most finished golfers of the forty-one who competed survived, and to-morrow we are assured of a really fine match in the 36 holes final between the holder, J. D. MacCormack, and D. E. B. Soulby, who to-day showed us that he has developed into a stubborn match player. Twice during the day he seemed a beaten player, but he did not break down, and he pulled his match with Nicholson off at the nineteenth, and later prevailed over Roy McConnell on the home green.

Soulby's match with Nicholson in the morning was a somewhat remarkable one. Nicholson is a 4 handicap player at Bangor and has some way to go before he reaches the first class, but only once did he allow the Portmarnock representative to take the lead, that being at the third hole, a lead which he was promptly deprived of, and thereafter Soulby was simply struggling against some of the most uncanny golf that has been witnessed in a championship for years. Soulby did play some poor shots, and thus gave his youthful opponent chances of which he was not slow to avail; as, for instance, at the fourth, where he sliced his second into a bunker, and again at the eighth, where he topped his drive; while he missed several comparatively short putts—an unusual thing for him. He was obviously upset by being unable to shake off his opponent, who at the turn had the very useful lead of two holes.

Nicholson effected some surprising recoveries, but the most astonishing thing he did happened at the twelfth. Here Soulby hit a fine drive, and he followed it up by playing a brilliant iron shot to within five yards of the flag, and a four was practically assured. Nicholson badly missed his tee shot, which did not travel 120 yards; he had to play out on to the fairway, and a mashie shot left him 100 yards from the green. He then played a running-up jigger shot and appeared to top it badly, but up it went to the pin, to come to rest in the hole for four, and so he held on to his two holes lead. However, Soulby squared at the fourteenth, but Nicholson rammed down another of his long putts at the sixteenth, and, with Soulby missing his, the Bangor lad was dormy one. When Soulby left himself a putt from the edge of the home green it looked all over, but he got down the putt for a win, and with Nicholson pulling his drive to the nineteenth into the hills on the left, and failing to get out of the sand and whins, he picked up.

Soulby had another hard match in the semi-final round with R. M'Connell. He was again down at the turn—in fact, the Ballymena man was here leading by three holes, and he deserved to, for Soulby was playing patchy golf. The latter, however, got on level terms at the thirteenth, and for the first time in the match he went into the lead at the fourteenth. They halved next in 5, but by holing a long putt for 3 at the sixteenth M'Connell again squared. The first real piece of good luck which Soulby had all day came his way at the critical stage of the match, the seventeenth, when he holed a sixty yards' mashie shot for a win to become dormy. M'Connell, however, fought it out splendidly at the last hole. True, he narrowly escaped the left-hand bunkers near the green with his third, but he had a putt for the hole with Soulby's ball partially blocking the way to the pin. He made a fine effort to save himself, but his ball struck the other, and so disappeared from the championship a skilful golfer whom many thought would fight out the issue with the holder.

In the morning MacCormack could not shake off Dalton until the sixteenth green had been reached, but had Dalton not been laid a stymie at the eighth and eleventh the match would have gone further. MacCormack laid solid the foundations of victory quite early by winning the first three holes in 5, 4, 3. This was a heavier load than his clubmate could carry round, and never once did he look like lessening it except at the eighth. He had another chance at the fifteenth, which was halved in a poor 6—the worst hole they had. The end came at the next hole. Dalton put up a capital fight for one so inexperienced in such tournaments, and he had the satisfaction of bringing the title holder farther than any other of his opponents.

We all expected E. F. Kilduff would fairly extend MacCormack in the semi-final round, and the latter also considered that this would be his most serious match of the week. But the Milltown player, who had beaten Joseph Gorry in the morning by very fine golf indeed, was right off his game from the outset. He was getting too much right hand into a number of his shots, and his troubles in that respect began early, for he pulled his first drive away into the hills, and lost the first two holes, for he also pulled his tee shot to the second, and only averted further disaster at the third by skilfully lofting a stymie. Three down at the turn he was set an impossible task on the way back, for MacCormack was playing fine golf. The latter never eased off, and with 3, 4, 3, 4 for the succeeding four holes, he won by 7 and 5. Details:—

Yesterday's results:—

ROWING.

ROWING IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. J. Walker Doherty's interesting letter in your issue of this date deserves the serious consideration of all Irish oarsmen. I am quite in agreement with him in his statement that there are too many regattas. Mr. Walker Doherty is, however, apparently not aware of the fact that within the past couple of years Messrs. Hollwey and Son, Sir John Rogerson's quay, Dublin, have built two "fours" and an "eight" (designed by Mr. Hollwey, who is himself an old oarsman), for the Dolphin Rowing Club, Ringsend, Dublin.—Yours etc., J. J. NEWCOMBE.

Dublin, June 17th, 1924.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It was with great surprise we read in your issue of yesterday a letter by Mr. J. Walker Doherty on the above subject, in which he states "that there is no boat-builder in Ireland." This statement, if allowed to go unchallenged, would seriously injure one of the branches of our business—viz., "boat-building in Dublin," on which class of work our firm has been engaged for a number of years to the expressed satisfaction of our clients both at home, in England, on the Continent, and across the Atlantic. We, therefore, decided a few years back on endeavouring to obtain orders at home for racing gigs, and it was not until the Dolphin Rowing Club very sportingly and patriotically placed an order, in 1922, for two clincher "fours" that we had an opportunity of demonstrating what could be done. That these boats gave satisfaction may be concluded from the fact that the same club placed an order with us for an "eight-oared gig," which can now be seen at their clubhouse, or later at their D.U.B.C. Regatta, and will, we think, bear favourable criticism and comparison with what has been purchased in England or elsewhere. Since then we have also had orders executed from some of the provincial clubs, and now have in hands one clincher "four" completed, one "fine four" almost finished, and a practice "pair." We had a very comprehensive exhibit at the Royal Dublin Society's Show in 1923, which was very favourably spoken of by past and present rowing men, both local and from the provinces.

Our principal, in addition to being a fully-qualified naval architect, is an old oarsman, having a knowledge of the financial position of our rowing clubs, and can, therefore, state that they are not in a position at present to find new boats suitable for every change of crews at our annual first-class regattas.—Yours, etc., G. HOLLWEY AND SON.

REFORM AND APATHY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Is it altogether fair to place the apathy (as you call it) to the Government of the Free State and its measures on the shoulders of the Free State public? It knows that the Dail consists of 126 or 128 members, and you tell it in the daily published division lists that the average attendance at the sittings is about fifty and often under it. Where are the other seventy members?—Yours, etc., "E. F."

Co. Wicklow, June 18th, 1924.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—On behalf of one temperance body that is small in Ireland, I wish to thank you for to-day's leading article. The publicans saw Mr. O'Higgins and set to work; the temperance folk saw him and went to bed. When we put the value on better laws that others put on their bread and butter Ireland will have a chance. On behalf of my own society I plead not guilty. We have been regularly in the gallery for the past week. We have been interviewing deputies and shaking other temperance folk; but it is hard work.—Yours, etc., D. W. HILL.

MILLIONAIRES AND THE FREE STATE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It would be interesting to learn whether the invitation to come to live in the Free State, given to millionaires by the Minister of Finance, has been successful in bringing here many of the wealthy citizens of other nations. The men of riches in search of a home where life is pleasant and not too exacting will find that the Minister caters for them both in life and death; for he offers them substantial inducements in the shape of reductions of super-tax and estate duty.

What the reduced rates embodied in the Finance Bill mean in terms of money may be illustrated if we take the case, say, of a multi-millionaire, whose estate of £5,000,000 gives him an annual income of £250,000. The reduction of the highest super-tax rate from 6s. in the £ to 4s. 6d. in the £ lessens his burden of taxation by £17,000 every year, while the decrease in the highest rate from 40 per cent. to 25 per cent. lowers the amount of estate duty payable on his death from £2,000,000 to £1,250,000 if the whole of the duty is payable in the Free State.

One reason for the Minister's desire to attract persons of wealth to settle in the Free State is obvious, when we consider that the amount to be paid in direct taxation by our multi-millionaire might reach the sum of £100,000 per annum. If the Minister's quest is successful, the advent of a few millionaires to the Free State will give him an opportunity of effecting further reductions in taxation. A reduction in income tax would meet with popular approval, enuring, as it would, to the benefit of so many classes of people besides the very wealthy.—Yours, etc., "FINANCE."

WHISKEY SALE IN DUBLIN.

GOOD PRICES AGAIN REALISED.

In the Metropole ballroom, Lower Sackville street, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. Andrew J. Keogh concluded the sale of Irish whiskey, brandy, gin and champagne belonging to Messrs. N. Carolan and Co., Dundalk.

A very small quantity of whiskey was distilled in 1917, and in the following year there was none. Therefore, there was keen competition for all the old bondings which have to supply the seven-year-old deficiency.

For John Jameson in bond at Dundalk, hogsheads of nine years old realised 30s. per regauge proof gallon; ten fresh sherry hogsheads, March, 1916, from 29s. 6d. to 30s., and hogsheads bonded in December, 1916, realised from 29s. 6d. to 31s. 6d. Ten hogsheads of five years old changed hands at 20s. and 20s. 6d., while hogsheads of four and a half year old changed hands at 17s. and 17s. 6d. For hogsheads bonded in February, 1920, prices ranged from 15s. 9d. to 16s.

For J. J. and S. in bond at distillers' stores, Dublin, lots bonded in December, 1922, and testing from 20.7 to 22 overproof, made from 11s. to 11s. 6d. Hogsheads bonded in January, 1923, realised from 8s. 9d. to 9s. 3d. per gallon. For lots bonded in April, 1923, in plain casks the prices were 9s. and 9s. 3d., and in fresh sherry casks 9s. 3d. and 9s. 6d.

John Power and Son's whiskey in bond at distillers' stores, Dublin, realised 23s. 6d. to 24s. 6d. for eight years old, and 11s. 9d. to 12s. for hogsheads bonded in March, 1921.

Six hogsheads of Power's eight years old, in bond at Dundalk, sold at 22s., 22s. 3d. and 22s. 6d.

D.W.D. in bond at Dundalk, March, 1919, sold at 9s. per gallon; for five years old the prices were 8s. 6d. and 8s. 9d., and 7s. 9d. to 8s. for hogsheads bonded in December, 1919.

Brandy—Hennessy's Three-Star 30 u.p. was sold for 54s. 6d. and 58s. 3d. per case.

Champagne in bond at Dundalk—Four cases of half-bottles Montebello, vint. 1915, were sold at 76s. per case.

Mr. Keogh was assisted by Mr. E. J. Archbold.

COLLAPSE OF A FLOOR.

While Mrs. Walsh was dressing her baby in a top room in No. 1 Thomas avenue, Waterford, portion of the floor collapsed, and mother and child fell to the floor beneath, a distance of twelve feet. The baby was caught before it reached the ground by Mr. Hallinan, the occupier of the room below, but Mrs. Walsh received serious injuries, and was taken to the infirmary.

CRICKET.

ESSEX V. SOUTH AFRICANS.

Including only five of the players that took part in the first Test match the South Africans showed superior all-round cricket against Essex on the opening day of the match at Colchester, and finished up two runs on with eight wickets outstanding. Against steady and accurate bowling, backed up by smart ground fielding, Essex were always struggling for runs. No defect in the wicket excused the failure of the county with the bat. In three and a half hours they were dismissed for 155, the only redeeming feature of the innings being a steady 34 by Russell. Quick to detect the batsmen's weaknesses, Taylor changed his attack frequently, and placed his field with judgment. Score:—

KENT V. MIDDLESEX.

At Tonbridge yesterday Kent lost three men for 54 in reply to a total of 239 by Middlesex, so that the London team have slightly the best of matters, especially as the wicket seemed to be faulty. Fast bowlers caused trouble all day, and the ball got up awkwardly at times. Score:—

YORKSHIRE V. SOMERSET.

Yorkshire gained a strong position in the opening day of the match with Somerset at Dewsbury. Dismissing their opponents, who won the toss, in two hours and forty minutes for 132, they then batted so well that they gained a lead of 31, with only one wicket down. Somerset were weakened by the absence of Robertson-Glasgow and Lowry, who had helped in their victory over Middlesex. Score—

SURREY V. DERBYSHIRE.

Following their experience on a soft wicket at Chesterfield, the Derbyshire batsmen timed the ball so badly on a fast pitch at The Oval yesterday that Surrey dismissed them in two hours and forty minutes for the poor score of 130. Surrey, who went in for rather more than two hours and a half, found run-getting so comparatively easy that they established a lead of 79 runs, and have still half their wickets to fall. The feature of the day was a superb display by Hobbs, who, so far, has made no semblance of a mistake, and he scored his runs by a nice variety of strokes all round the wicket. Score:—

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE V. NOTTS.

The meeting of these counties at Northampton yesterday was marked by some extraordinary cricket, and at the close of a remarkable day Notts, with only one wicket left, are 43 behind the home total. Winning the toss, Northamptonshire made a wretched start on a wicket that appeared of easy pace, by losing Woolley and Jupp for 7, and five wickets for 67, before lunch. In 80 minutes after the interval the total was doubled, Bellamy and Walden putting on 20 in the sixth partnership, and, with Bull doing some hitting, his association with Thomas produced 31 for the ninth wicket. Notts found Northamptonshire's good length bowling so difficult that in 70 minutes before tea they scored only 30, and lost four wickets in the process. After tea the game continued to go badly for Notts, five more wickets falling for 26. Score:—

LEICESTERSHIRE V. CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY.

Starting in bright sunshine there was some interesting play at Leicester yesterday. Batting first, the home county put on 61 for the first partnership, but the best exhibition was that of King, the veteran left-hander. Batting an hour and forty-five minutes without mistake, he hit ten 4's, cutting, pulling and driving with power and resource. The last wicket put on a valuable 38, in thirty-five minutes, and the innings, which lasted three hours forty-five minutes, closed for 221. Wright, bowling unchanged, after the first tens runs took six wickets for 74. Cambridge fared disastrously, Skelding bowling Dawson and Lowry with successive deliveries, and, with Shirley playing on, three wickets were down for 17. Shipman then got rid of Crawley and Austin with consecutive balls, and six wickets fell for 56, and when stumps were drawn Cambridge were 139 behind with three wickets standing. Score:—

SUSSEX V. WORCESTERSHIRE.

The feature of the first day of the second match in the Horsham Week was the splendid innings of 157 not out by M. K. Foster, his second three-figure score in two days. Worcestershire scored 280 in four hours and a quarter, and Sussex lost four wickets for 37 in forty minutes before the close. There was a heavy thunderstorm in the night, and the outfield was soft, but the wicket rolled out well, though it was not fast to begin with. Score:—

GLOUCESTERSHIRE V. LANCASHIRE.

Lancashire was slow to take full advantage of the fast wicket prepared on the Wagon Works ground at Gloucester yesterday. It was true they had to deal with very accurate bowling, which was supported by smart fielding, but that was barely sufficient to account for their spending five hours and twenty minutes compiling 280, for seven wickets. Until five men were out for 161 nobody showed the least enterprise, but later Richard Tyldesley did display some freedom, and by that time some of the sting had gone out of the attack. Score:—

SWIMMING.

LEINSTER TAILTEANN TRIALS.

The Leinster Branch I.A.S.A. was again very successful last night in connection with the concluding section of their programme to evolve a team to meet the combined forces of Ulster and Munster in a final Irish trial, provisionally fixed for the 27th and 28th inst. The weather, following a showery morning, was all that could be desired, and again a fine attendance was in evidence. The feature of the evening was the men's 100 metres, free style, race, in which M. Brophy, of Sandycove, put up a fine performance to win by three yards from Dr. Beckett. Miss M. V. Armstrong won the 400 metres event in convincing style, and has to her credit the remarkable performance of winning all the ladies' races in the series of trials. Details:

1,500 Metres, Free Style, Men.—T. H. Dockrell (Dublin University), 1; R. K. Boylan (National University), 2; Dr. W. H. Sexton (Dublin), 3. Dockrell led throughout, and at 1,300 metres was 50 yards ahead of Boylan, who was swimming strongly. A great finish resulted in a win for the mile champion by about a yard and a half. Winner's time—30 mins. 38 2-5 secs.

Ladies' Diving.—Miss McMurdo, Pembroke, w.o.

200 Metres, Breast Stroke, Men.—E. E. Benson (Pembroke), 1; H. F. Case (Pembroke), 2; J. A. O'Connor (Dublin), 3; W. Judd (Dublin), 4. Won by three yards; fifteen yards between second and third. Time—3 mins. 53 secs.

100 Metres, Free Style, Men.—M. Brophy (Sandycove), 1; Dr. J. Beckett (Pembroke), 2; O. N. Armstrong (Pembroke), 3; S. Barrett (Clontarf), 4. Also competed:—B. J. Fagan and H. M. Dockrell (Dublin). Brophy led throughout, and won by three yards; a touch divided second, third, and fourth. Time—76 secs.

BUILDING BY PUBLIC UTILITY SOCIETY.

This photograph shows a section of the thirty-six dwellings built by the St. Barnabas Public Utility Society, facing off the West road.

The pioneer in this scheme is the Rev. David Hall, St. Barnabas Parish, who has just inaugurated a campaign with the object of building in Dublin 1,000 houses per year for the next five years.

The first efforts of the St. Barnabas Public Utility Society were devoted to the erection in 1921 of ten dwellings at the West road.

In 1922 the society erected an additional group of twenty-six houses, and at present four more are in course of erection, while tender forms are out for the construction of sixty-two further houses.

The first ten houses erected cost £1,100 per dwelling, the next twenty-six cost £900 each, and the four in course of erection are to cost £600 each.

These houses are all of the five-roomed type, containing livingroom, parlour, three bedrooms, scullery, bathroom, hot and cold water, larder, coal house, etc., and gardens front and rear.

The majority of them are constructed of concrete blocks, and all are roofed with asbestos tiles.

Ten of the houses were constructed on the Calway walling system of Messrs. Geo. Rome and Co., Dublin, Ltd.

The houses were built by Messrs. J. and R. Thompson (Dublin), Ltd., to the designs of Mr. F. G. Hicks, F.R.I.B.A., 86 Merrion square.

BUILDING WAGES INCREASED.

A joint meeting of employers and men's representatives in the building trades in London on Monday reached a settlement on the national wages question, involving a halfpenny per hour increase to all sections, to apply immediately.

CONCRETE HOUSES.

Experiments in concrete houses are particularly worth noting at a time when there is a scarcity of bricks. Eighty houses are just being completed for the Oxford Corporation at the very low price of £280 each. These are non-parlour houses, but they have three bedrooms and a cupboard bath is fitted in the scullery. These are not the first concrete houses to be built for the Oxford Corporation; some have been erected for three years. They are found to be quite dry, and it is stated that not a single complaint has been received from a tenant. The construction is of concrete blocks of two types—gravel concrete externally and breeze internally. Oxford district is said to be peculiarly suitable for concrete building owing to the abundance of suitable material for aggregate.

OIL FUEL BOOMING.

The rapid increase in the number of marine steam plants utilising oil fuel in place of coal is brought out by figures from Lloyd's Register. Thus, in 1918-19 of the total tonnage classed, 67.6 per cent. was coal-fired and 32.4 oil-fired. On an almost equal tonnage in 1920-21 the respective figures were 40.3 and 59.7 per cent., while on a reduced tonnage of 1921-22 39.1 per cent. represented coal and 60.9 per cent. was oil-fired.

ENGINEERS' AND ARCHITECTS' QUALIFICATIONS.

The Senate, on the motion of Mr. Douglas, seconded by Mr. Barrington, adopted a resolution in pursuance of the report of the Committee on Standing Orders, by which Standing Order No. 40 provides that every plan, specification, or estimate required to be deposited under Standing Orders shall be drawn or made and signed by a competent person. If an architect he must be a Licentiate, Associate, or Fellow of the R.I.B.A., or a Member or Fellow of the R.I.A.I., or if an engineer, a Member or Associate Member of the Institutions of Civil, Mechanical, or Electrical Engineers.

WOMAN ARCHITECT.

Labour-saving cottages, where nearly everything is done by electricity, have just been erected near East Hoathly, in the heart of peaceful Sussex. They have been designed and built by Mrs. Annabel Dott, wife of the rector of Barnes, Middlesex.

In Grey Wood she has erected 17 cottages which have their own power station, electric light, electric laundry, electric washer-up, refrigerating plant, communal bakehouse, electric irons, and electric kettles.

Nine of the cottages are in one quadrangle, and these have the advantage of a central hot water supply. Although the houses have the latest labour-saving devices they have a delightful old-fashioned appearance, with thatched roofs and panelled rooms.

Mrs. Dott engaged the carpenters, bricklayers, and other workers, and acted as clerk of works.

The cottages in the quadrangle have an old manor house atmosphere, with a large living-room, about 30ft. long, with oak floor, panelled walls, and stone mullion windows. Besides the living-room they have a small dining-room, three to four bedrooms, a bathroom, and kitchenette.

DUBLIN NOTES.

Rathmines Urban Council, which has already built 124 houses at Kimmage, is to build another 114.

Dalkey Urban Council has decided to sell sixteen houses to tenants at £434. The total cost to build per house was £667.

***

Recently a cross-Channel firm offered the British Government to erect 200,000 six-roomed houses in one year at a cost of £250 each. Pembroke Urban Council is to invite the firm to erect two specimen houses in their area. The houses will be entirely constituted of concrete.

***

At a Council meeting of the Royal Institute of the Architects of Ireland, Mr. George P. Sheridan, President, in the chair, the following members were declared elected to the rank of Fellow:—Messrs. George L. W. Blount, Joseph Holloway, Michael T. Tighe, John J. Robinson and Horace T. O'Rourke.

***

The Dublin Corporation Commissioners have decided that, with a view to encouraging the erection of houses by private persons, they will exercise the power given to local authorities under the Housing (Building Facilities) Act to the full, and subsidise to the maximum amount the building of houses which are in accordance with the conditions laid down in the Act and are within an area of 1,000 feet for each house. Grants to an amount not exceeding £10,000 provided in this year's estimates will be given on application being made in the prescribed form and compliance with the statutory conditions.

ROAD CONSTRUCTION IN THE COUNTRY.

ESSENTIAL FACTOR IN MODERN TRANSPORT.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

Civilisation has always been the close companion of good roads. Thus, in Peru, the great roads built by the Incas were a feature of their remarkable civilisation. So too, the Roman civilisation, though it has long since vanished, has left a monument to its greatness in the wonderful system of roads which can still be traced through Great Britain and many parts of Europe. In many places whole stretches of these roads remain intact, and where this is not the case their probable course can often be traced by the position of parish boundaries which they formed in ancient times.

Another method of tracing these roads is offered by the fact that, viewed from an aeroplane, their course is indicated by a darker shade of the grass. The most remarkable feature of these roads is their straightness, a quality essential to the Romans, since the ambush is not, as many Irishmen might believe, a modern invention. Many of the old Roman highways were broken up to provide material for the turnpike roads when that system was introduced in 1663. Although few turnpike gates were erected in Ireland, the roads here were for over a century better than those in England.

THE MACADAM ROAD.

When, however, early in the 18th century, Macadam introduced his method of road construction, English roads were greatly improved. This famous Scot insisted on the use of stones of uniform size for construction and repair, and lessened excessive camber—a relic of Roman construction. His system, mainly owing to bad foundations, was not so successful in this country, particularly in the cities of Dublin and Belfast.

The fact that nearly one-seventh of the surface of Ireland is bogland added greatly to the difficulty of our road-making. In this connection it is interesting to compare the method adopted in such cases in Ireland with the Roman system. The latter consisted of laying down a stout wooden framework covered with reeds, over which the road was laid.

In this country brushwood, heather or sods covered with clay, over which was placed another layer of brushwood at right angles to the first, was the usual foundation. A curious development arose out of the construction of these roads. The Irish peasants, being dependent on turf for fuel, took their supplies from the borders of the roads, so that in time the latter became unsteady, and in many cases new roads had to be laid down.

GOOD ROADS ESSENTIAL.

If Ireland's civilisation is to be judged by her roads, the verdict cannot be favourable. Bad roads will always form an insuperable obstacle to the development of the country. A proof of this is recalled by the recent death of Lord Pirrie, who some fifteen years ago was concerned in a scheme to benefit agriculture by the introduction of a great motor transport system throughout the country. This excellent project had to be dropped owing to the bad condition of the roads.

Ireland is struggling to revive her language, her culture and her games—in short, her ancient civilisation. Surely we may hope that the authorities will recognise that good roads are an essential factor of true civilisation.

"ROAD CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE."

"Road Construction and Maintenance" is the subject of a lecture to be delivered in the Theatre Royal, Dublin, next Thursday, June 26, by Mr. J. S. Killick, who was County Surveyor of Hertfordshire, Chief Engineer and Deputy Director of Roads, Ministry of Transport, London, and British Government delegate to the International Roads Congress.

The lecture has been arranged by the Royal Dublin Society, and the Governor-General has intimated his intention of being present.

Mr. Killick's visit is of particular interest in view of the fact that the Government proposes to give more practical assistance to the maintenance of the highways of the Free State, rural transport having become a matter of first-rate importance.

Modern methods of locomotion have made increased demands on those who control the upkeep of the roads, and provision has to be made for heavy motor lorries and motor cars generally. Improved transport facilities would mean not only the development of the agricultural industry by enabling Irish farmers to compete with outside rivals who have the advantage of cheap and convenient transport, but would attract a greater volume of tourist traffic to this country.

LIVERPOOL'S EXAMPLE TO DUBLIN.

WIDE APPROACH ROAD INTO CITY.

For many years past Liverpool has laboured under the disadvantage of a lack of wide and efficient means of approach to her busy port and commercial centre, and this will at least be obviated to a certain extent when the much improved roadway between Liverpool and Prescot is an accomplished fact. Although the road does not form any part of the scheme of arterial main roads which has been evolved by the City Engineer of Liverpool, Mr. J. A. Brodie, it will form a link with the greatly improved roads which have come into being in the city during the past twenty years under the aegis of Mr. Brodie, who is probably one of the foremost road makers in the country.

The road in question was formerly somewhat of a zig-zag nature, with many sharp turns in it, connecting up Liverpool from the city boundary with Prescot, via Knotty Ash. It has now been made much more useful and accessible for heavy traffic by the straightening out of many of these turns, and easing the gradients in such a way as to provide a valuable main thoroughfare.

An arrangement has been made between the Liverpool Corporation, the Lancashire County Council, and the Ministry of Transport, by which the Liverpool Corporation have removed the tramways from the surface of the road, and have constructed a double line of track laid on clinker ballast and sleepers, the tramway track being fenced off from the roadway by a privet hedge and light wire fencing.

The new road, apart from the tram track, is 45 feet wide, with a footway 15 feet in width, and a carriage way has been constructed throughout with a concrete foundation and paved with granite setts. The cost of the tramway track construction has been borne by the Liverpool Corporation, with some assistance from the Ministry of Transport, as a work for the unemployed, whilst the carriage way and footpath have been carried out at the expense of the Lancashire County Council with the usual 50 per cent. of cost contribution made by the Ministry of Transport to unemployed works.

120 FEET WIDE.

The Corporation of Liverpool have undertaken to purchase the necessary width of land so that this road may be constructed to a width of 120 feet, when the traffic is sufficient to require this additional width, and this, of course, will be the duty of the Lancashire County Council or other Road Authority at that time in existence.

The City Engineer of Liverpool, who was approached on the matter by our Liverpool representative, said that the system of construction was one which has been largely adopted throughout the country, and was distinctly a good one. Liverpool, he said, really needed three or four such approach roads to lead the traffic into the city and port, and though this road would probably not be a main road when the whole scheme was completed, it was a road which would be of the greatest assistance in bringing about the facility of speedy inter-connection between Merseyside and the great manufacturing districts of the county.

WAGES ON NEW ROAD SCHEMES.

Representatives of the Civil Engineering Contractors' Federation (Scottish Section) and of the Workers' Union met in conference in Glasgow to consider the fixing of a definite wages basis for work on new roads in the Glasgow area. The rates now being paid for this class of work range from 11½d. to 1s. 1½d. per hour, but the Union claims that Glasgow should be graded on a level with the large towns in England, where the rate is about 1s. 2½d. per hour. In the course of the conference an offer was made to improve the position in Glasgow, but it was not accepted, and it was agreed that the matter should be referred to arbitration.

DUBLIN BARRACKS FOR WORKERS' HOUSES.

Kehoe (formerly Richmond) Barracks.

Speaking in the Dail on last Tuesday, the President said that it had been decided to hand over Kehoe Barracks for the purpose of a housing scheme. A proposal for the accommodation of the working classes therein was under consideration by the Commissioners for the County Borough of Dublin. It would be open to the promoters of the scheme to lease or sell portion of the buildings, if suitable, for the purpose of providing any necessary school accommodation.

In the above picture are seen (at top) two sides of one of the squares, and in the lower picture the officers' quarters in the barracks referred to by the President. Kehoe Barracks, formerly known as Richmond Barracks, is situated on the Emmet road at Old Kilmainham. Most of those concerned in the events of Easter, 1916, were detained and tried here.

RESEARCH.

Dr. R. E. Stradling, M.C., M.Sc., Ph.D., Assoc.M.Inst.C.E., A.M.Am.Soc.C.E., Head of the Department of Civil Engineering, Architecture and Building in the Technical College, Bradford, has been appointed Director of Research of the Building Materials and Construction Research Board of the Government Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, London

The Building Research Board, according to the Report of the Research Department, was formed in 1920 to consider and direct the conduct of research on building materials and methods of construction. For this purpose a research station at Acton was established in July, 1921, and since that time this station has been in full operation. Having regard to the immediate importance of the housing question, the efforts of the Board at first were directed to research into building materials and methods of construction suitable for small houses. But the Board has considered that its most useful function lay in fundamental research, and, with this end in view, the work has fallen naturally into two categories: (a) fundamental research of an almost purely scientific nature, and (b) the attack of practical problems where economic situations enter or are even paramount.

Dr. Stradling was appointed as a member of the staff of the Technical College, Bradford, in August, 1922. Since he has entered upon his office in that College he has been responsible for the direction of the whole of the work of the Department of Civil Engineering, Architecture, and Building. He has remodelled almost entirely the full-time and part-time courses in the College.

AGAINST CONCRETE.

Following the visit of members of the Newport Corporation Parliamentary and Improvement Committee to Wembley to examine ferro-concrete structures, it has been decided not to use ferro-concrete in the construction of the new bridge over the River Usk at Newport. It has been estimated that by the use of such material the cost of the structure would be reduced by about £18,000. The original contract placed with Sir William Arrol and Co., Glasgow, at £140,275, is accordingly to stand without modification.

GREAT CONGRESS OF ENGINEERS.

WORLD POWER CONFERENCE AT WEMBLEY.

JUNE 30 TO JULY 12.

The Conference on World Power at Wembley, which will be held from June 30 to July 12, has been organised by the British Electrical and Allied Manufacturers' Association largely with the object of pooling world opinion on the subject of power and of discussing its economic, industrial, and political possibilities. In every country there is a wealth of power-producing agents, and each country has its own peculiar contribution to make to their study and development. The conference exists to co-ordinate all that information, to investigate national achievements and organise international advance.

Over 30 nations are taking part in the conference, and each has undertaken to submit reports prepared by acknowledged authorities on the power resources at its disposal and on the use it has so far made of them, while other authorities survey the problem from wider aspects, touching even on the historical and the literary. For instance, papers on water-power are contributed from Austria, Belgium, British Guiana, Canada, Czecho-Slovakia, Denmark, the Dutch East Indies, Finland, France, Great Britain, Holland, Hungary, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Russia, Rhodesia, Spain, South Africa, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United States, while Mr. J. R. Freeman and Mr. H. L. Cooper (United States), Professor A. H. Gibson (Great Britain), Mr. H. G. Acres (Canada) and others contribute general papers on water-power development. Thus nations which, like Italy and Norway, have made enormous use of a special type of water resources to produce power, are prepared to indicate the methods they have applied and the results obtained. Denmark and Holland relate what use they make of wind; Sweden tells of advanced education in engineering; India discusses water storage; Great Britain has Sir Arthur Duckham to speak about the industrial use of gas.

IRELAND'S INTEREST IN WATER POWER SCHEMES.

Of special interest to Irish engineers will be the schemes which are to be described by M. Largiader, of the Association of Swiss Electricians.

The development of Swiss water-power is easily the most striking example of the triumph of mechanical science over the most inhospitable forces of nature. What were until very recent years the sources of both Swiss poverty and independence now promise to be the chief asset of the thrifty people. Alpine torrents, unnavigable rivers, and mountain lakes have been harnessed to supply light and power to the most inaccessible parts.

Under the energetic supervision of the Federal Government the internal distribution of "white coal" power has gone very far, and the intention is to extend the large central circuit which connects with all the Swiss power stations by linking it up with the systems of France, Germany, and Italy, to which countries Switzerland is already a large exporter of energy.

It is in connection with these schemes that the obliteration of many famous spots dear to the heart of tourists will be necessary, and some portions of the St. Gothard Railway and of Napoleon's road over the Alps will need to be reconstructed.

The motive power of Switzerland grew from 250,000 h.p. in 1890 to 2,250,000 h.p. in 1913.

ALL METAL HOUSE.

An arresting building is to be found in the Eastern Section, outer circle, between the British Government Pavilion at Wembley and the Giant Switchback. It is the "All Metal" building erected by Messrs. Frederick Braby and Co., Ltd., of London and Glasgow, from the design of Mr. Braxton Sinclair, F.R.I.B.A. This firm conceived the idea of erecting an "all metal" building, made of the products of their different works, in which to house their exhibits. The house has a very beautiful external appearance, with its copper roof, dormer and dome surmounted by a globe, the steel framework having been covered in a very effective manner with steel panels, with handsome windows in steel and bronze set in. The frontage has been carried out most artistically by the architect, with a recessed vestibule, two storeys in height, entirely executed in bronze, with bronze doors and screens, and also steel casements with copper panels. The interior of the building is equally interesting. The flooring is of steel, with pressed steel ribs, covered with a composition, and there is a noval staircase of pressed steel. The roofing is lined with zinc, and the Unit system of steel brasses can be observed from the top floor. Steel lockers and shelving, etc., line the walls. Inside this striking metal building are exhibited the many varieties of goods manufactured by the firm.

The Boundary Crisis.

President Cosgrave's statement in Dail Eireann yesterday had the negative virtue that it did not aggravate the boundary problem. The President's position is exceedingly difficult. On the one hand, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald is pleading for new "explorations." On the other hand, Mr. Cosgrave's more impatient followers are urging him to "cut the cackle" and to come to the Boundary Commission without further delay. Waiting expectantly at the back of these impatient persons are others who seek to use the boundary question as an instrument for the destruction of the Free State. The motion to which the President spoke yesterday was, in effect, a vote of censure upon his Government's handling of the recent negotiations. His defence, made in measured and careful terms, was entirely convincing and ought to satisfy moderate men of all parties. The Free State Government holds firmly by Article XII. of the Treaty, demands an exact interpretation of it, and desires that the Boundary Commission shall be constituted and shall get to work without a moment's avoidable delay. It is not prepared, however, to provoke a dangerous crisis by rash or untimely action. It recognises that the British Government also has difficulties, and it does not challenge that Government's right to consult the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on matters which do not concern the interpretation of the Treaty. President Cosgrave refuses, therefore, to impose a time limit on a Government whose anxiety for a real settlement of the boundary issue is manifestly sincere. The Chairman of the Boundary Commission has been appointed, and, pending the decision of the Judicial Committee, there is only one matter of procedure upon which the British Prime Minister and President Cosgrave find themselves in disagreement. The former proposes that before the Commission is fully constituted the Chairman, Dr. John MacNeill, and a representative of Northern Ireland shall join in preliminary searches for a settlement by agreement. President Cosgrave objects that the policy of conference has been tried and found wanting, and desires that Mr. Justice Feetham and Dr. MacNeill shall clear the way for the Commission by taking steps to ascertain the wishes of the people in the disputed areas. The President's proposal is quite legitimate, but contains an element of real danger. We fear that, however tactfully the Chairman and Dr. MacNeill should set about their business, passions would be stirred on the border that might ruin any prospect of a settlement by agreement. The President himself has not dismissed such a prospect. He declares that he is willing at all times to consider any representations which would offer hope of a general settlement on a basis of national reunion. True statesmanship will seek to maintain an atmosphere favourable to compromise until the last moment before the machinery of the Commission takes control of affairs. May we not expect some measure of such statesmanship alike from President Cosgrave's more exigent supporters and from the Government of Northern Ireland?

Imperial Preference.

In the House of Commons yesterday the four resolutions, dealing with Imperial Preference, which were passed at the recent Imperial Conference, were defeated by small majorities. They were proposed by Mr. Stanley Baldwin, who made a very strong case for their acceptance; but the Government was determined to reject them, and, of course, the Liberals followed Mr. Asquith, who always was a fanatical Free Trader, into the Government Lobby. Mr. Baldwin stuck by his protectionist guns, declaring that, in the view of the Conservative Party, some form of Imperial Preference was absolutely essential to the maintenance of Imperial unity. Europe's whole tendency, he insisted, was to raise tariff walls instead of lowering them, and every day British manufacturers were finding new obstacles in their path. Furthermore, conditions in this respect were likely to become worse with the progress of time, because a reconstructed Europe would be a far more formidable rival of British trade than the Europe of pre-war days. Mr. Baldwin, therefore, urged the Government to develop the Dominion markets to the best of its ability, and asserted that this end could be achieved only through the medium of preferential tariffs. His ideal, he avowed, was an Empire in which every constituent part would offer free trade to all the other parts, while the Empire, as a whole, would build a common tariff wall against the remainder of the world on the analogy of the United States of America. That ideal, he urged, could be achieved far more quickly than the ideal of internationalism in Europe.

The first resolution was defeated by the narrow margin of six votes, and even four Liberal supporters would have turned the scale. Mr. Asquith, however, has made a fetish of Free Trade and ignores altogether the fact that the Great War played havoc with all the Cobdenite theories. The four resolutions of the Imperial Conference he denounced as "an attenuated, emasculated, anæmic and even apocryphal version of the full-blooded gospel of Imperial Preference." Every unit of the Commonwealth, he argued, enjoys fiscal autonomy, and its first duty is towards its own citizens. Therefore, as Protection in any shape or form would not benefit England, Imperial Preference must be rejected. The Imperialist subordinates the insular point of view to that of the Empire as a whole, but Mr. Asquith and those who follow him in the House of Commons—with the notable exception of Mr. Lloyd George, who did not attend at Westminster yesterday—seem to be quite unable to look round the corner of the twentieth century. Their eyes are glued on the Gladstonian period when the term "British Empire" had much the same meaning as the term "French Empire" has to-day. We are no lovers of Protection as an economic panacea, and recognise clearly that the British people will not have it; but there is a vast difference between Protection and Imperial Preference, and the advantages of the latter are so manifold that its rejection by a British Parliament is almost inexplicable.

The die has been cast, and now the consequences must be faced. At present all the Dominions and India buy the great mass of their imports from Great Britain. In 1922 Australia alone took no less than £10,000,000 worth of manufactured goods from British exporters. Naturally enough, they all expect that if they buy goods from Britain, she will take their products in return, and, in order to be able to compete successfully with rival countries nearer to the British market, they demand some kind of preference from His Majesty's Government. If they cannot get that preference, they will be forced to seek it elsewhere. As Mr. Baldwin said very truly, no question of pique is involved. The Dominions are confronted with hard economic facts which cannot be evaded. They must live. Hitherto they have been perfectly loyal to the British connection, sacrificing much for their kinship and glorying in their partnership with Britain and the other Dominions. If Britain, however, proposes now to leave them in the lurch, they must fend for themselves, with results that cannot fail to do much damage to the mother country and to the Empire as a whole. Matters of Imperial policy should be above the ordinary squabbles of domestic politics, and we are inclined to think that the leaders of all three parties in the House of Commons made a mistake in dragging the problem of Preference into the arena of political controversy. Parliament, however, is supreme, and last night's verdict must stand for the time being; but we fear that Messrs. Asquith and Macdonald will have occasion yet to rue their devotion to a political shibboleth.

Indian Discontents.

Preparations for the meeting of the Third International at Riga are well advanced, and the Communist leaders, angered by Mr. Ramsay Macdonald's adherence to "Britain's traditional policy" in India are laying plans for an agitation in that country. The creed of Communism is particularly ill-suited to India, but the "wild men" will find a wide-spread discontent that may further their schemes. The agitation against British rule in India is fostered by an embarrassingly large number of leaders with a noticeable lack of any definite policy, and this fact makes the activity of Mr. C. R. Das in Bengal the more dangerous. While the murder of Mr. Day is recognised generally as a serious outrage, Mr. Das gives his support to the Sirajgunj resolution in praise of the crime. He declares that the vast majority of Indians feel proud of the murderer "because of his readiness to suffer for what he considered to be the interests of his country." These wicked words may have a disturbing effect on the more ignorant and headstrong adherents of Indian freedom. Mr. Gandhi, the idealist, has condemned the crime, but his influence has waned considerably of late, and the Arya Samajists, in particular, are bitterly opposed to him. If Mr. Das's incentive to violence is followed, he must take full responsibility for the results. Before India is capable of turning to good account further measures of political emancipation she must substitute unity for dissension among the common people and mutual trust for recrimination among her leaders. Any attempt to appeal to the argument of physical force or to invoke the aid of Communist agitators will be both futile and fatal.

The Nation's Health.

At the annual meeting of the Irish Medical Association yesterday Senator W. A. O'Sullivan drew attention to the country's declining physique—a serious tendency which demands the notice of all who are concerned for the national future. Senator J. T. O'Farrell on the previous evening had told the Pembroke Labour Club that Irishmen were losing their traditional sense of humour. The two subjects are connected, since a decline in public health reacts on the national temperament and is the keynote of all political and social problems. A high and progressive standard of national health depends largely on the efficiency of the medical profession, and no steps should be neglected to maintain the good name that Irish medical men have won in the past. The supply of doctors in the country exceeds the demand, and many of our most promising graduates have been compelled to seek employment abroad. Conditions ought to be made sufficiently attractive to ensure the services of the highly qualified men whom the country requires so urgently. The establishment of a separate Medical Council for the Free State or ill-considered economy at the expense of dispensary doctors' pensions might have disastrous effects, from which the whole nation would suffer no less than the medical profession. Dispensary doctors have done good public service—witness Senator O'Sullivan's estimate of over a million cases attended annually. They must not be made the victims of a false economy. The importance of the nation's health must not be obscured by political issues, however pressing, if Ireland is to achieve the destiny to which she aspires.

IRISH AIR MAIL.

SERVICE FROM LIVERPOOL NOT TO BE RESUMED.

The report from Belfast that the Liverpool-Belfast air service may be resumed at once is denied by the business manager of De Havilands, who says that it has been definitely decided not to resume the air service from Liverpool.

Mr. J. L. M'Carthy, Secretary of Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, replying to the criticisms of the Lord Mayor of Belfast that Liverpool had not supported the service, said that any failure of Liverpool business men to avail themselves of the service was not in any way due to apathy or antagonism. He believed the explanation to be simply that they had not the facilities brought to their notice as fully as they might have been.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

PREFERENCE AND EMPIRE.

CLOSE DIVISIONS ON MR. BALDWIN'S RESOLUTIONS.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.
WESTMINSTER, Wednesday.

The attendance in the House of Commons this afternoon was fairly good

The Minister of Labour informed Sir Kingsley Wood that it was not the intention of the Government to institute an inquiry into the circumstances which led to the recent lightning strike on the London electric railways. Sir Kingsley Wood asked if the Minister of Labour did not think that the public was entitled to know the circumstances. Mr. Shaw replied that, as certain constitutional negotiations between the Unions and the railway companies were about to take place on these matters, he thought it was highly undesirable to attempt to institute an inquiry until the results of the discussions were known.

Mr. Snowden stated that the Government had agreed with the German Government to extend the existin arrangement by which the levy under the German Reparations Recovery Act was paid at 5 per cent. until the date of the coming into force of the recommendations of the Expert Committee's report.

To-night's debate on the Imperial Preference resolutions was on a decidedly higher level than that of yesterday, and the House had the advantage of listening to the views of the leaders of all three parties before dinner.

Mr. Baldwin opened with a somewhat stolid speech, in which he urged that Preference in some form was absolutely essential in the interests of trade and the general welfare of the people. The only markets, he said, which were really open to us were those of the Dominions, and they ought to be secured, not by treaties, but by preference. To-night's decision, therefore, would be of profound and far-reaching importance. "It is markets we want," he observed, "and my own ideal has always been an Empire which will have free trade within its boundaries, but with a tariff for revenue only round the outside of the ring."

There were cries of dissent and some ironical cheering when Mr. Baldwin, replying to the argument that had been advanced, that the electors had refused to give a mandate for preference, maintained that the general election had nothing to do with the matter. The resolutions came within our own existing fiscal system, and, so far as he could see, the first four of them, at any rate, ought not to touch the susceptibilities of the most confirmed Free Traders in the slightest degree. The point he desired to impress most strongly on the minds of members generally was that the rejection of these resolutions would imperil the future of the whole Empire.

Mr. Asquith, who followed, was in rather a merry mood, and he chaffed the Conservative leader upon attaching an exaggerated importance to these resolutions and upon having underestimated the verdict of the country upon them. With all the best will in the world, Mr. Asquith said, he was unable to flog himself into a state of excitement over these resolutions, about which there was an air of unreality and even triviality. This talk about the rejection of the resolutions imperilling the Empire! What a conception people must have of the solidity of the foundation and bonds of Empire! If the truth were known, these resolutions were an attenuated, anæmic and even hypocritical version of the full-blooded gospel of Imperial preference.

TWO PROPOSITIONS.

He proceeded to state that he should vote against all the resolutions, not because he conceived they could do any harm, but because, in his view, they would not be of the slightest advantage to the Empire. He concluded by laying down two propositions. The first was that, in our free self-governing Empire every constituent part was free to deal with its fiscal problems as it chose in the interests of its own people; and the second, that in a democratic community they should refrain from arrangements which fettered their future fiscal freedom.

Then came the Prime Minister, who declared that the advocates of Imperial Preference were fallaciously assuming that the Dominions expected us to alter our whole fiscal system. Nothing was farther from the facts, and his own view was that the ideal outlined by Mr. Baldwin would not be advanced a single step by the adoption of these resolutions. No doubt to-morrow morning, continued Mr. Macdonald, I shall be represented as having turned a cold shoulder to our Colonies, while going out of my way to oblige Russia. That charge, he continued, was absolutely untrue.

Mr. Macdonald took point by point the arguments advanced in favour of Imperial Preference, and could find nothing in them which could possibly induce him to vote for the resolutions. He personally believed the resolutions would impose a burden on the people at home, which would, as years went on, become less and less tolerable.

Mr. H. A. L. Fisher, from the Liberal benches, was prepared to support the first three resolutions, which did not, as it seemed to him, impose any additional burdens upon the consumers of this country.

CHANCELLOR'S OPPOSITION.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer advanced many reasons why it was not desirable to adopt any or all of the resolutions, but his main objection was that their acceptance would tie the hands of future Chancellors of the Exchequer when considering remissions of taxation. Another consideration was that this issue, whenever it had been placed before the electors, had invariably been rejected.

Commenting upon the absence of Mr. Lloyd George, the Chancellor feared that the right hon. gentleman had been lured, he would not say into inconsistency, but into passive inactivity during this debate. According to information that had reached him, Mr. Lloyd George was paired in support of some of the resolutions. If that were so, the right hon. gentleman apparently had changed the view he expressed little more than six months ago, and, after all, believed that perhaps the Empire might be saved by a tax on tinned crabs. When the laughter which this sally evoked had ceased Mr. Snowden went on: "I am surprised that anyone on our side of the House should have been beguiled by the apparent innocence of the first four resolutions; those who vote for these resolutions will inevitably commit the country to a general Protective Tariff."

Mr. Austen Chamberlain was in merry mood when he wound up the debate for the Opposition. He had a dig at Mr. Asquith, one at the Prime Minister, a few shrewd hits at the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and a joke at the expense of the Colonial Secretary, who, he said, in dealing with this question, was about as easy as a lobster in a pot, with its claws tied up. The Prime Minister evidently felt that he had an ungracious task; but the Chancellor of the Exchequer had a disagreeable task, and he loved doing it. Mr. Chamberlain paid a tribute to the courageous action taken by Mr. Lloyd George on this question, and then passed on to Mr. Asquith, who, he observed, amid loud laughter, is, like myself, a married man. Would he offer as a proof of his affection the observation: "My dear, my heart is as open to you as to all the world?"

The first resolution, which exempts Empire produced dried fruits from import duty, was rejected by 278 votes to 272. The result was received with loud Opposition cheers.

The second resolution, which further reduces the duty on Empire grown tobacco, was defeated by 284 votes to 271.

A third division resulted in the defeat of the resolution, making reductions in the duty on Empire wines, by 285 votes to 268.

The fourth resolution—in favour of a ten-year preference for Colonial sugar—was rejected by 283 votes to 263.

The remaining six resolutions, which imposed new import duties on various goods of foreign origin, imported into this country, were not moved.

Mr. Baldwin announced that in view of the decision of the House he would not move the remaining resolutions.

BOUNTIES FOR IRISH.

FURTHER OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The following statement was issued yesterday by the Free State Ministry of Education:—

In his letter of yesterday's date the Warden of St. Columba's College, Rathfarnham, states that the new programme for secondary schools proposes to make Irish and science compulsory subjects for the certificate examinations; that the pupils will, therefore, have no time to learn French or German or Latin or Greek or commerce or drawing or music; and that "we shall be virtually cut off from the stream of European culture and from the classical traditions that are the basis of modern civilisation." He is obviously unaware of the fact that at the leaving certificate examinations, and for the two or three years that precede them, intermediate pupils can in future devote themselves entirely to any five of the subjects which he says are excluded, and that at these examinations they can get the full certificate on any five of these subjects.

The rules and regulations are so clear and explicit on this point that it is difficult to see how his mistake arose. Lest there should be any further misunderstandings about the new programme, it may be well to summarise its main features. They are as follows:—

1—It requires only two examinations in the whole school course of six years.

2—It does not require that all the pupils should be presented even for these two examinations.

3—It gives the schools the fullest freedom of choice as regards text-books and methods of teaching each subject for these examinations.

4—It is only at the first of these examinations that it proposes to require a knowledge of Irish and science, and then only after several years' notice.

5—It gives the fullest freedom to the schools to present the pupils for the leaving certificate examination in any five subjects they choose—e.g., in Latin, Greek, two modern languages and English, or in music, drawing, commerce, etc., or in any other combination of subjects, including all the subjects that the Warden fears are excluded from the schools by the new regulations.

It is hard to see how so liberal and elastic a system of secondary education can cut us off from the stream of European culture and from the classical traditions.

COMPULSION AND THE SCHOOLS

A REPLY TO THE MINISTRY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I venture to offer some remarks on the statement published this morning in your columns from the Free State Ministry of Education. As the new Rules and Regulations for Intermediate education were only published last week and contain many new points for careful reflection, there has not yet been time for any considered criticism to be made by the teachers' organisations. But as a statement has been issued by the Ministry, which is, I think, likely to be misleading, some immediate comment seems necessary to prevent public misunderstanding.

(1) It is a matter for regret that Catholic and Protestant schools should be put into separate categories. This never occurred under the old Board, and it is an omen of bad augury for the commencement of the new system. What is required is a secondary education good and sound for the whole country, and, if it is not good for Protestants, it will not be good for Catholics, and vice versa.

(2) It is stated that there is little in the argument that Protestant schools will be penalised, since most of them teach Irish at present, and all of them, it is assumed, perhaps correctly, will do so in a few years' time. That, however, as the Ministry should know, is not the point. Schools will willingly provide teaching of the Irish language for all who wish it, but the Ministry's regulations seem to contemplate the teaching of Irish to all Intermediate pupils up to the age of 16. They certainly contemplate that from 1928 no student will be able to obtain the Intermediate certificate without passing an examination in Irish. The point plainly then is this. Will schools, otherwise admittedly necessary and excellent, suffer financially if they do not present and pass a large number of pupils in this examination? For, whether the Ministry realise it or not, the schools are the servants of the public, both in the teaching of Irish and in all other subjects. This brings me to my third remark.

(3) The Ministry's argument on compulsory subjects is not apropos: an educational institution cannot run ahead of public opinion. The compulsory subjects referred to were all made such with the general support of educated people as good for education. When Irish has obtained that general support, no defence or advocacy of it will be necessary. The Ministry's own statement proves that this position has not been reached. The parents who pay the greater part of the expenses of their children's education must first be persuaded of the advantage of compulsory Irish. Otherwise they will not send them to the Intermediate schools.

(4) The statement also makes great play with the three school years' notice that is being given. This is, perhaps, an oversight, as it is not possible for the schools now to make any reorganisation for the coming year 1924-25 in their teaching staffs such as will be necessary if Irish is to be taught to all pupils. There are at least two serious difficulties to face even if it were possible. It is not possible, because to reorganise the school staff for this purpose would mean replacing some teachers by others competent to teach Irish, and this cannot be done for the coming year, even if it were fair, as it is too late to give the required three months' notice. The two difficulties are these: (1) where are we at present to get suitable teachers of Irish in adequate numbers for our schools? (2) Irish cannot be added to the regular school curriculum without displacing some other standard subject. Which is it to be—Science, French, Latin? The choice requires consideration. However, it cannot be made at present, as we have commitments to our own present staffs.

(5) May I make a complaint or two? The Ministry promised us officially last summer that "it is intended that the programme for 1924-25 shall be published as early as possible in the coming school year (1923-24)." It has not been published until the very end of the school year, when the school staffs are broken up and dispersed. It requires much careful thought and consultation, which cannot be given to it. Lastly, there is a very grave grievance to the schools in the introduction of the new reformed system without increased financial provision either for the schools or for the teachers. On this there are no two opinions.—Yours, etc.,

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference—The depression now west of Ireland is drifting slowly northwestward or northerly, showing signs of filling up, while there are indications of the development of shallow depressions over the Continent. Winds over the British Isles are likely to be mainly light, from a southerly or variable direction, and the weather will be warm, with considerable fair periods, but local thunderstorms.

Ireland.—Wind southerly or variable, mainly light; considerable fair periods; local thunderstorms; warm.

All Irish Seaboards.—Wind southerly, moderate or fresh, decreasing; mainly fair; local showers, perhaps thunder; visibility moderate or good; sea moderate to slight.

DUBLIN SHIPYARDS DISPUTE.

In the Ministry of Industry and Commerce yesterday a conference was held between representatives of the Dublin shipbuilders and the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union, with a view to settling the dockyard dispute, and re-opening the shipyards. The conference lasted two hours, but no report was issued to the Press. The shipbuilding section of the Transport Union will hold a further meeting on Friday night.

LONDON LETTER.

NORTHERN IRELAND'S STATUS.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

A very interesting point concerning Northern Ireland arose during the proceedings to-day in Standing Committee C, which was considering the Local Government (Removal of Disqualification) Bill, which aims at removing disabilities due to the reception of medical assistance at the charge of the poor rate. A question whether the Bill should apply to Northern Ireland was raised, and it was decided to defer the matter until the report stage, and that it should be ascertained in the meanwhile whether legally Northern Ireland was included in the term "England."

When Clause 21 of the Finance Bill comes before the House of Commons for consideration in the Committee stage, Lieutenant-Colonel Howard-Bury and Sir Frederick Wise will move that "provided that, as far as concerns Great Britain, Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State, the double taxation, both income tax and super tax, shall be dealt with by departmental arrangement between the two countries, leaving only the extra expense, or whatever is the amount of difference between the two countries, to be demanded from the individual."

Parliament's Plans.

Yesterday the Government was threatening members of the House of Commons with sitting far away into August; but the night brought reflection, and, probably, recognition of the fact that the members would not stay. Now it is decided that Parliament shall adjourn in the week ending August 9th. To do this the Housing Bill, in all probability, will have to wait until the autumn, though the Labour Party as a body will oppose the postponement of a measure on which it is of opinion that so much depends.

Thanksgiving.

St. Paul's Cathedral was filled from end to end this evening for the Empire Thanksgiving Service arranged for the benefit of the overseas visitors to London. The Service was very impressive from a musical point of view, but still more so from the attendance. In the front seats were negroes, Hindoos and more than one Hindoo woman, while Colonials, as we used to call overseas people, were present in hundreds. The Service opened with a procession from the great West door of choir, clergy and the Lord Mayor and Corporation, to the hymn, "Blessed City, heavenly Salem." "All people that on earth do dwell" followed, and then a number of collects were recited for the bereaved, for those who laid down their lives in the service of the Empire, and for the absent.

An Impressive Service

Pipes were heard in the great London cathedral for the first time. After a hush in the Service the far-away playing of "The Flowers of the Forest," with its hollow drum notes, could be heard, and the pipers of the Scots Guards slowly perambulated the space underneath the dome. It was most eerie—the sound of the wailing pipes and the thump on the broken drum, with the constant tattoo of the side drums—and it was almost a relief when the sounds died away as they came. An anthem to the memory of the brave, composed by Dr. A. Gray, on Christina Rossetti's words, "What are those that glow from afar?" and a long lesson from the Old Testament, read by the Dean, led the way to a magnificent rendering of a "Te Deum Laudamus" in B Flat, by Dr. Macpherson, the organist of St. Paul's. The Service was concluded with the National Anthem.

A Brave Airman.

Wing Commander W. G. Barker, V.C., who has just arrived in London to take up the duties of liaison officer between the British and Canadian Air Forces, was one of the most intrepid airmen during the war. A story is told of him that while at Hounslow, shortly after the armistice, he was pottering about the machines with a permanently disabled arm when he happened to meet the Prince of Wales. The Prince had flown with the airman behind the Italian lines, and asked that he should again be taken up and shown some "stunts." The request was met in the spirit in which it was made, and in some way Prince and airman eluded official vigilance, and were quickly risking their necks in some of the most daring evolutions known to airmen. The Prince was delighted, but it did not save himself and the captain from a good wigging when they landed.

The King's Cup.

The race for the King's Cup this year will be open to aeroplanes and seaplanes, as the original intention to limit the entries to seaplanes has been abandoned. It will be a one-day race, and the course will consist of a circuit in which turning points will include Bristol, Leith and Renfrew. No decision has yet been reached as to the starting point, but it will probably be Felixstowe for seaplanes, and the neighbouring aerodrome at Martlesham Heath for aeroplanes, in which case the finish of the race would be arranged for one of the flying stations on the Solent, where there is accommodation for aircraft of both types. At the request of the Air Ministry seaplanes of the newer type will not take part, but some of the latest aeroplanes may be competing in the race, which is a handicap event, and will be decided next month.

"2 B.S."

The new high-power broadcast station at Chelmsford made experimental transmissions yesterday, and, should the preliminary tests prove successful, the station will be opened for regular programmes at the end of next week. In the meantime users of wireless sets in the Free State may be able to pick up some of the trial transmissions which will be sent out on a wave length of 1,800 metres from "2 B.S.," which is the call sign of the Chelmsford Marconi station. It is possible that the full power of the station may not be employed for all the trials; so that reception in Ireland may not at first be strong.

New Roses.

Complaints have now been heard for years that the new roses are almost without scent, and the complaint has reached the ears of the rulers of the Royal Horticultural Society, with the result that a challenge cup is to be offered at its show on July 8th for a rose possessing such a scent as used to be found in the old cabbage rose, the Marie Baumann and others of the same type. Mr. Courtney Page, the Secretary of the National Rose Society, said to-day that we probably have roses with far better perfume than that possessed by the old damask, but it is doubtful whether there is anybody alive to-day who knows what the old-fashioned rose perfume was like.

Queen Alexandra.

Queen Alexandra will not be in town for her Rose Day, but she is not to be left out of it altogether. The Earl and Countess of Kinnoull intend to fly before breakfast from Hendon to Sandringham, in order that the Queen Mother may have an early bunch of roses, with an address. Everybody regrets that Queen Alexandra will be unable to drive through London next week, but the Queen is to take her place, and will visit the main dépôts in the City and West End.

THE BOUNDARY ISSUE.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE'S REPLY TO CRITICS.

ALWAYS AGAINST DELAY.

WHY THE COUNCIL OF IRELAND WAS POSTPONED.

In Dail Eireann yesterday President Cosgrave replied to the points raised by Mr. S. Milroy and Mr. Thomas Johnson in last week's discussion on the boundary question.

Mr. Milroy moved what in effect was a vote of censure on the Government. The resolution called upon it to take no further part in conferences pending the establishment of the Commission, and to fix a limit to the time during which it would assent to the constituting of a Commission. Mr. Johnson demanded the fulfilment of Article XII., not only with regard to the Boundary Commission, but also with regard to the Council of Ireland, so far as it affected Northern Ireland.

President Cosgrave said that the Executive Council's opinion was that the boundary question should be determined without delay. That had been its opinion from the beginning, and it had pressed continuously for the establishment of the Commission. To fix a time limit would suggest to some minds that it had approved delay at one period.

He explained the circumstances in which the Provisional Government agreed to postpone the setting up of the Council of Ireland, and said that if nothing was done in the meanwhile to vary or improve its constitution, the Council, as contemplated by the Act of 1920, would come into being on the appointed day.

President Cosgrave ended his speech by reading a letter which he sent to Mr. Ramsay Macdonald on the 17th inst. In this he suggested that the Chairman of the Boundary Commission and Dr. MacNeill should begin at once to ascertain the wishes of the inhabitants in the areas affected by Article XII.

He rejected the proposal that the two Commissioners, with a representative of Sir James Craig, should join in preliminary studies with a view to an agreed settlement on the ground that the principals had failed to reach an agreement, and that an agreement must be based on Article XII.

NO CONFIDENCE.

INTERPRETATION OF THE RESOLUTION.

The debate on the Boundary negotiations was resumed yesterday in the Dail. The debate had been opened last Friday, on a motion by Mr. Milroy as follows:—

"That Dail Eireann expresses dissatisfaction with the course pursued in dealing with Article 12 of the Treaty, and calls upon the Executive Council to cease participation in any further negotiations regarding the matter pending the setting up of the Boundary Commission; and, further, calls upon the Executive Council to fix a limit to the time to which it will assent in the constituting of the Commission."

To that motion, Mr. Johnson had moved an amendment in the following terms:—

To delete all words after the words "Executive Council" (where first mentioned) and to substitute therefor the words:—" . . . to insist upon the fulfilment of Article 12 in respect both to the provisions relating to the Council of Ireland so far as they relate to Northern Ireland, and to the appointment of a Boundary Commission; and further calls upon the Executive Council to fix the limit to the time to which it will assent for the constituting of the Commission."

When the debate was resumed last night, President Cosgrave, reading from a prepared document, delivered his reply. He said:—The motion and amendment are, the statements to the contrary regarding the motion notwithstanding, in the nature of a vote of no confidence. Dissatisfaction with the course pursued must of necessity involve the Executive Council. There are two, or possibly three, parties to Article 12. The amendment to the resolution only alters the motion by making it more exhaustive and changing the character of the motion, as interpreted by Deputy Milroy.

The amendment, if passed, would involve a change of Government, and would impose upon the new Government the duty of conveying to the British and Northern Governments:

- (a) Dissatisfaction with the course pursued in dealing with Article 12.
- (b) Instruction to the Executive Council to cease participation in any further negotiations regarding the matter pending the setting up of the Boundary Commission.
- (c) Insist upon the fulfilment of Article 12 in respect both to the provisions relating to the Council of Ireland and the appointment of the Boundary Commission.
- (d) Fix a limit to the time to which it will assent for constituting the Commission.

AGAINST DELAY.

Taking the last of the four conditions first, the Dail must know that such a course involves a time table, with extensions and extensions, or estimated delays at each step. Contemplating that delays in this sense are unavoidable accidents, and not premeditated acts, the sum total which might reasonably be claimed could be absorbed and a good case made for unforeseen contingencies.

I am not satisfied that the course pursued—as Deputy Milroy's motion declares—has been entirely to my satisfaction. The correspondence which has passed between the two Governments reflects in a very fair way the opinions of the Executive Council. I am not in a position, nor would I consider it wise, to fix a time limit. Nor would I, were the positions changed, seek to impose such a condition on an Executive Council, the President of which was Deputy Milroy and the Vice-President Deputy Johnson.

"To fix a limit to the time to which it will assent to the constituting of the Commission" may be read to mean that you do agree to such delay. That policy is not to be found in the correspondence between the two Governments, and, if I may be permitted to express my opinion on the mind of the Northern Government, it is that this Boundary question should be determined without delay.

PARTY TREATMENT.

For the first time this matter has assumed a tincture of party treatment. I deprecate such a course in dealing with a matter of such very great importance. Whether the objective be dissatisfaction with the policy of the Executive Council in dealing with this Article of the Treaty or not, by this motion and amendment the Dail is forced to decide for or against the resolution, as amended or not amended, according to Deputy Johnson's proposal is accepted or rejected.

In voting against the motion you are placing the Executive Council in the position that it might be claimed elsewhere that it was satisfied with the course pursued. In that connection I may say that I would prefer that the Executive Council were removed from office by a vote of the Dail than that it should be inferred that the true mind of the Executive Council was not reflected in the published correspondence.

The amendment appears to have been occasioned by certain remarks made by the ex-Attorney-General in the debate of May 28th. His intervention in the debate arose through Deputy Johnson and Deputy Davin (especially the latter) pressing the question of inclusion of the Great Northern Railway in a particular way. They did not appear to be satisfied with the case as put by the Ministry of Industry and Commerce. They insisted on attributing to the Government a line of action based on supposed inability to deal with the Great Northern Railway and other railways which cross the border.

The ex-Attorney-General intervened for the purpose of asserting our complete sovereignty, including unlimited authority to deal with these railways so far as they are within the twenty-six counties, by legislation of the Oireachtas, while explaining the liability of the Oireachtas to legislate for such railways in so far as they lie outside the territory for the time being, subject to the jurisdiction and legislative authority of the Oireachtas.

The ex-Attorney-General was asserting authority where Deputy Davin particularly was apparently attributing to the Minister for Industry and Commerce a smaller conception of our powers.

THE ACT OF 1922.

I do not understand how the ex-Attorney-General could have supposed that Deputy Johnson and Deputy Davin had forgotten the provisions of the Irish Free State (Consequential Provisions) Act, 1922, or that they had failed to understand it, or that the provisions of that measure, passed nearly two years ago, were not known until three weeks ago.

Mr. Johnson—Passed by whom?

The President—By the British Parliament.

Mr. Johnson—Are we supposed to know that?

The President—It was published in the Press and might have been known. The clause dealing with the Council of Ireland in the first schedule to that Act was no secret at the time. The entire text of the bill was printed in the Irish newspapers of the 27th November, 1922, and the debates in the British Parliament at every stage of the bill were also fully reported in our newspapers. It would be absurd for public representatives to say that they took the ostrich line and would not read the bill when it was going through the British Parliament, because it was the British Parliament, even though the bill greatly concerned us.

CRAIG-COLLINS PACT.

The question of the position of the Council of Ireland and its difficulties in practical operation was not something newly sprung for the first time in November, 1922. It was recognised in a public document, the Collins-Craig Pact in January, 1922; and, indeed, the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, itself provided for the variation of the constitution of the Council, by identical legislation of the two Parlaments contemplated by that Act.

Apart from any criticism of the constitution of the Council of Ireland under the Act of 1920, it was absolutely clear after the Treaty was made some variations in its constitution must be made, because there was no longer a Lord Lieutenant of Ireland (necessary, e.g., for Section 2 (2) of the Act of 1920), or a Joint Exchequer Board (required for the purposes of Section 10 (5)) and some alternatives to them with legislative sanction became necessary.

Moreover, General Collins had always been dissatisfied with the mode of constituting the Council as it stood in the Act of 1920, and (as appears by the Pact) he had discussed the matter with Sir James Craig, for the purpose of arriving at the constitution of the Council of Ireland by agreement, which, resting on agreement, would be able to function with success.

NOT SEEKING SHELTER.

A great many things happened between January and November of 1922, and, worst of all, General Collins had been killed. I hope the Dail will acquit me of an ulterior motive in introducing the name of the late General Collins. I am not doing so for the purpose of any excuse or explanation. I am not including the fact of the original agreement between the late General Collins and Sir James Craig for the purpose of substantiating my case. It is now my own responsibility. If there was an error or mistake in the policy of the late General Collins in January, 1922, I have no desire to shelter myself. If the action of the Provisional Government in the arrangement entered into between the three Governments in November, 1922, were blameable, I accept it, and accept the fullest responsibility for it.

But I cannot suppress the fact that due and ample notice was given to the country in the first instance regarding this proposal so far back as January, 1922, and subsequently by the Press in November, 1922. No further progress had been made in evolving satisfactory proposals for the Constitution of the Council of Ireland.

One proposal had been mooted and received not unfavourably—namely, meetings of the Executive Council and the Belfast Cabinet with a view to joint action on the matters within the purview of the Council of Ireland.

DIFFICULTIES.

The idea of joint action by the two Governments was an attractive one, but in order to make it effective it would be necessary to work out the administrative machinery through which it would operate and the mode of meeting its financial obligations.

The position at the time of the passing of the Constitution was that the original Constitution of the Council of Ireland had been admitted to be defective when it came to putting it into operation; it had been recognised that the Constitution of the Council could, and should, be modified so as to make it a real and actually operative instrument of government within its limited sphere; and no progress could be made in the matter without appropriate financial arrangements. Further, it was essential that while the Council of Ireland should, if possible, be continued it was apparent that the setting up of the Saorstat with unlimited powers within its own territory restricted the powers of the Council as contemplated by the Act of 1920.

It was necessary to get the Constitution of the Saorstat established. It was desirable to keep open the question of how the Council of Ireland was to be made real and effective. Therefore, the Provisional Government assented to a suggestion which was embodied in the Act of the British Parliament known as the Irish Free State (Conseqential Provisions) Act, Clause 3 of the Second Schedule—an Act which, while still in its bill stage, received every publicity, as I have shown, and must have been familiar to every member of the Dail. As a matter of fact, on 27th November the Dail was not in session. It came into session on 28th November while the bill was in progress.

NO DEVIATION.

It is quite fallacious to say that the postponement is in any way a deviation from the Treaty. The Act of 1920, which in this respect has been imported into the Treaty and upon which the Council of Ireland depends, contained a provision that days were to be appointed for the bringing into operation of its various purposes, and Section 73 of that Act provided for the postponement of the appointed day for any particular purpose at the joint request of the Governments of Southern Ireland and Northern Ireland.

Under the terms of the Treaty the Provisional Government, in addition to its other powers, succeeded to the powers conferred by the Act on the Government of Southern Ireland, and it had ample power to enter into the agreement in question.

When the period of postponement of the appointed day expires—if nothing has been done in the meantime to vary or improve the Constitution of the Council of Ireland as contained in the Act of 1920—the Council will be immediately called into existence as

GENERAL SMUTS ON HIS DEFEAT.

"MAY BE A BLESSING IN DISGUISE."

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

CAPE TOWN, Wednesday.

To-day's returns in the South African elections make the defeat of the Smuts Government certain.

A substantial majority for the Nationalist-Labour Coalition is now assured. The Nationalists will probably be the strongest party in the new Parliament, but it is unlikely that they will be able to carry on without the support of the Labour members.

The defeat of General Smuts is attributed to the astuteness of the Pact organisers in substituting a Labour for a Nationalist opponent. The railway workshop employés, largely British, are an important factor in the Pretoria West constituency, and they voted almost solidly against the ex-Premier. It is believed that petty grievances among the Defence Force lost General Smuts a good many military votes.

Mr. George Hay, the successful Labour candidate, was formerly an Eastern Province journalist, who made a fortune in diamond speculations during the boom succeeding the South African War. His luck subsequently deserted him, and he is now an avowed Socialist. He has had political experience, having served under General Botha in the Transvaal Legislature before the Union, and, more recently, as a member of the Transvaal Provincial Executive.

It is therefore expected that several Ministerial posts will be placed at the disposal of Colonel Creswell and his colleagues, but it is doubtful whether these will be accepted.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

General Smuts, in a message expressing his most cordial thanks to his Committee, says: "Be of good cheer. From the wider viewpoints, which shape the national policy, our failure may yet prove a blessing in disguise. My faith in the future remains as strong as ever, although the immediate outlook before the country is gloomy enough. In that faith we hold on unflinchingly."

Colonel Denys Reitz, son of ex-President Reitz, of the Orange Free State, and Minister of Lands, succeeded in holding Port Elizabeth Central against his Labour opponent, Mr. R. L. Weir, and was returned by a good majority.

Another Minister elected is Sir Thomas Watt, Minister of Public Works and of Posts and Telegraphs, who got a comfortable majority over Mr. D. Barlow Jones (Nationalist) at Natal.

The Speaker of the House of Assembly, Mr. C. Joel Krigs, defeated Advocate F. W. Beyers, one of the most extreme Nationalists in the country, by 583.

The Nationalists gained Ventersdorp (Transvaal), where Mr. L. J. Boshop unseated Commandant B. I. J. Heerden (S.A.P.), and also Heidelberg, Transvaal, where Mr. S. D. De Wet beat the S.A.P. candidate (Mr. F. W. R. Robertson).

The Nationalist candidate, Mr. Bergh, who defeated the Right Hon. F. S. Malan at Malmesbury, is not a well-known figure in the political world.

Twelve members have offered their seats to General Smuts.

The latest figures of the state of the parties are:—

ROYAL VISIT TO BELFAST.

HONORARY DEGREES FOR DUKE AND DUCHESS.

At a meeting of the Senate of Queen's University, Belfast, yesterday, it was decided to confer the degree of LL.D. upon the Duke and Duchess of York on their forthcoming visit to Belfast in July.

During the visit the Duke of York will unveil the Queen's University War Memorial.

A FIRM REPLY.

AMERICA AND JAPAN'S PROTEST.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.

Mr. Hughes's reply to the Japanese protest against the exclusion features of the new immigration law, like the communication of Mr. Hanihara, is kindly in tone, but strongly worded, and contains several rapier thrusts of argument.

Mr. Hughes declares that Congress is wholly within its rights in enacting the law, and that the new statute is mandatory upon the Executive branch of the Government, leaving no latitude for the exercise of discretion in carrying out its provisions.

"The provision which is called into question," says Mr. Hughes, "does not greatly differ in practical operation from the understanding with Japan embodied in the 'Gentlemen's Agreement,' under which the Japanese Government co-operated with the United States in preventing the immigration of Japanese labourers into this country."

Expressing his appreciation of the fact that the Japanese supported the carrying out of this long-established policy of the United States, Mr. Hughes remarks:—"Indeed, the appropriateness of this policy, which was not evinced from any lack of esteem for the Japanese people, their character and their achievements has been confirmed, rather than questioned, by the voluntary action of your Government in aiding its execution." Mr. Hughes declared that the substantial difference between the present law and the "gentlemen's agreement" lies in what President Coolidge described, when he signed the law, as the determination of Congress to exercise "its prerogative in defining, by legislation, the control of immigration, instead of leaving it to international arrangement."

DUBLIN BUILDING STRIKE.

FOLLOWERS OF MR. LARKIN STOP WORK AT MARINO.

Yesterday morning some 400 labourers, employed at Marino in carrying out the big Corporation scheme of the erection of 400 dwellings for the working classes, struck work. The labourers, followers of Mr. Larkin, refused to work with men who supported the Executive of the Union, and downed tools, throwing 700 workers out of employment.

Some carters on their way to deliver building materials at Marino were "held up" and turned back.

The building contractor, Mr. John Kenny, of Harcourt road, stated that operations were going on nicely were it not for the strike, and that in a short time 1,000 men would be employed on the job.

HOUSES FOR EX-SERVICE MEN.

THE CLADDAGH SCHEME.

At Fairhill, Claddagh, Galway, yesterday, Mr. H. M. A. Murphy, Sailors' and Soldiers' Department at the Colonial Office in London, handed over the keys of twenty-five of the forty-six houses which are being erected for ex-Service men at a cost of over £30,000.

The houses are built after the style of Australian bungalows, with kitchen, parlour and two and three bedrooms, with French windows. All are fitted with electric light.

There are 500 ex-Service men in the Claddagh district, and the building of twenty-two additional houses will be commenced immediately.

ENGINE OFF THE LINE.

ACCIDENT AT DROGHEDA.

While a cattle train was shunting at Drogheda yesterday morning the engine left the rails at the points, and two empty waggons, which were nearest to it, were badly damaged. The other waggons, which were filled with cattle, escaped. The Meath branch line was blocked until the damage to the rails had been repaired and the broken waggons removed.

IRISH MEDICAL PROFESSION.

MOMENTOUS PROBLEMS

REGISTRATION AND PUBLIC SERVICES.

Dr. W. O'Sullivan, member of the Free State Senate, presided at the annual meeting of the Irish Medical Association in the Royal College of Surgeons, Dublin, yesterday.

Dr. O'Sullivan said that the Irish medical profession would be faced this year with momentous problems. He was convinced that an ill-treated body, like the great majority of Irish medical practitioners, was a poor national asset, and, in critical times, was bound to fall short of the demands of the occasion.

At the moment there were being discussed different matters of much concern to the Irish medical profession. One of these was the question of medical legislation, and another the question whether or not there should be a separate Medical Council for education and registration for the Irish Free State. With regard to this latter question, an attitude of insularity or intensive nationality would be disastrous, and it was hoped that when this question came to be settled the present relations of the country with the General Medical Council would be altered as little as possible. He was of opinion, however, that, with mutual convenience and advantage to both countries, there might be some devolution of functions, especially with respect to penal administration, and that a medical body might be established in this country for special purposes, somewhat on the lines of the Incorporated Law Society of Ireland.

IMPORTANCE OF RECOGNITION.

Since the establishment of their own Government they had lost the little that they had gained after the strenuous efforts in the few years preceding its establishment. Latterly, when their claims were being dealt with by the Ministry of Local Government, there was a tendency to try to belittle the amount and importance of their work. It was necessary to remind the Government that the medical profession of Ireland was entitled to some recognition. Instead, however, they found recently, in the Free State, that when a Local Government Bill was being passed through the Dail it was made the occasion to repeal the clauses of the Local Government Act of 1919, which provided for a compulsory pension for dispensary doctors.

The Local Government Bill, for the most part, lacked any medical conception, as though it borrowed, without acknowledgment, some of its ideas from recommendations made by the profession, the fact remained that they were never consulted with regard to its preparation. Even if the bill's public health provisions had become law, it might happen that they would be departmentally nullified by the offer of salaries so inadequate that they could only ensure the inaction of the medical officials appointed to administer the Act. In all the circumstances it was not to be wondered at that the people of this country were physically a third-rate population, when they should be an easy first. This condition, it was to be feared, would continue until they became as degenerate physically as the pigmy races of Central Africa, unless the Government appraised at their proper value the advice and services of the medical profession in Ireland.

At the close of his address the President moved:—

"That this meeting expresses the hope that no change will be made in the system of medical registration in the Irish Free State which would interfere with the right already possessed by medical men qualified in Ireland to practice in Great Britain and the Dominions."

Dr. H. N. Byrne seconded the resolution, and it was adopted.

IMPORTANCE OF UNITY.

A lengthy discussion took place on the necessity for having only one Medical Association in Ireland. It was necessary that there should be a body which could speak for the majority of practitioners, and claim that any policy it formulated had the support of the whole profession.

Dr. T. Hennessey referred to the Irish Medical Committee. He said that it was not hostile to any organisation, and its constitution did not require a subscription from the members. It was simply made up of the active elements in the Irish medical bodies, and every medical man in the country had a voice in its decisions. Such a Committee had no interfering effect on any organisation.

The several Committees having been elected, the President stated that he had some reason to understand that the method of appointing medical officers throughout the country was about to be changed. Personally, he was in favour of a national service, appointed by competitive examination.

Dr. T. Hennessey said that the one thing to avoid was the appointment of a selection committee to make these appointments. The medical officers should be appointed on a Civil Service basis, and the examination should be a thoroughly practical one.

Dr. Rowlette said that until they had a national medical service, appointed by competitive examination, he did not think that matters were likely to be improved by taking the initial election out of the hands of the local bodies.

The meeting approved the following resolution, which was moved by the President and seconded by Dr. McGuinness:—

"That this Association re-affirms its opinion that a National Medical Service should be established for the Irish Free State, entrance being by competitive examination, and as recommended by the Irish Public Health Council."

A resolution was also passed protesting against the hardship imposed on medical practitioners, who used motor cars as instruments of their profession, by the present excessive taxation.

The annual report of the Society was unanimously adopted. It stated that there was a credit bank balance of £569 3s. 8d. Pressure was being brought to bear on the Government to reduce the taxation of motor cars. It was a great hardship that doctors, whose cars were used almost entirely in the interests of the public health, had to pay the same tax as those who ran cars for pleasure. It was a greater hardship on the doctor who kept two cars—one only in use at a time—that he should have to pay the full tax on each car. The whole matter was under consideration, and it was hoped that before long relief would be given in both these directions.

CURRYGRANE HOUSE.

RECOVERY OF LOOTED PROPERTY.

A report from Longford states that five men, residing in the neighbourhood of Granard, have been arrested on a charge of being in illegal possession of a large quantity of silver and plated ware, which is alleged to have been looted from Currygrane House, the residence of Mr. J. Mackey Wilson, which was burned two years ago.

In the early morning Inspector Hunt, of the Civic Guard, with Sergeants Collins and Byrne and several Guards, visited the district, near Granard, and searched a number of farmhouses. They discovered large quantities of silver. In consequence of this they arrested Thomas Quinn, Peter and James Maguire, Hugh Columb, and Michael Campbell. The men were brought before a Peace Commissioner and remanded on bail, to appear at Longford District Court on next Wednesday week.

The Civic Guards took charge of the recovered articles. They consisted for the most part of silver jugs, bowls, cruet stands, candlesticks, spoons, knives and forks, all of which, it is stated, have the crest of the Mackey-Wilson family. A quantity of carriage harness was also found.

OFFICER FOUND SHOT.

Captain D. H. Hadden, Royal Army Service Corps, was found shot dead in his room in Omagh Barracks yesterday morning. A revolver, containing one live and one spent round, was lying beside the body.

Captain Hadden, who was aged 33, and unmarried, was the eldest son of Dr. W. F. Hadden, Macharee, Portadown. He was recently appointed a member of the Order of the British Empire (Military Division) for services in the field in Waziristan, on the Indian fronter, between January, 1922, and April, 1923. He had been stationed at Omagh since June 3 last, and was to have been transferred to Magilligan yesterday.

BREAK WITH MEXICO PROBABLE.

BRITISH AGENT TO BE WITHDRAWN.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Wednesday.

A definite break between Britain and Mexico is stated to be almost inevitable.

President Obregon and his advisers, so far from modifying their attitude towards Mr. Cummins, the British Agent, have replied to Mr. Ramsay Macdonald's communication in a manner which, to put it mildly, is the reverse of pleasant, and have reiterated their demand for Mr. Cummins' recall.

It may be doubted whether the full implication of this demand is recognised in Mexico City.

The British Government, strongly backed by opinion in the City, has been anxious to regularise its position towards Mexico, and there is very little doubt that the projected mission of Sir Thomas Hohler would be followed by recognition of the Obregon régime.

This is now regarded as impossible. There is no question, of course, of any British action of a bellicose nature.

Mr. Cummins will be withdrawn—no other course consonant with dignity being left open—but the Hohler Mission will be abandoned, and Mexico, so far as her relations with Great Britain are concerned, will be left "in the air."

Where the disadvantage in that case will lie is obvious. The Cabinet met yesterday morning, and the position of Mr. Cummins was considered.

TOUR OF FRENCH BATTLEFIELDS.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S WEEK ABROAD.

The Legion of Irish ex-Service Men is arranging a pilgrimage to the battlefields of France, and a Continental Tour. The total cost for one week, including boats, railways, motor tours, accommodation and meals is £16 16s. for first class, £12 for second class, and £8 10s. for third class. Tickets available for thirty days will be issued to persons who desire to spend more than a week in France.

The party will leave Cork in the City of Cork Steam Packet Company's steamship, Kenmare, on Saturday, the 5th of July, and at Fishguard will meet the contingents from Dublin, Waterford, etc. The party will go from Fishguard Harbour Station to Paddington, and thence by motor 'bus to Lyons' Corner House, Coventry road, for breakfast. After High Mass in Westminster Cathedral, a wreath will be laid on the Cenotaph. Following a drive through London the party will proceed via Dover and Calais to Lille, where they will be received by the representatives of forty-eight societies, with bands and banners.

For Monday the organisers have arranged a trip via Comines to Ypres, where the Munster War Memorial will be unveiled. It is expected that Prince Henry will unveil the Memorial, and that the King of the Belgians will be present. A visit to Mount Kemmel, the laying of a wreath on Major Redmond's grave, and an official reception by the Mayor and Corporation of Lille, and representatives of the French Government are among the engagements for the day.

Tuesday will be devoted to visiting La Bassée, Bethune, Lens, Vimy Ridge, Givenchy, Arras, Beaucourt-Hamel, Thiepval, and Amiens.

The engagements for Wednesday and Thursday include the laying of a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Warrior, a reception by members of the Inter-Allied ex-Service Men's Societies, an official welcome by the civil and military authorities of Paris, and visits to places of interest in Paris.

The party will arrive back at Cork on Saturday, the 12th of July.

BLIGHT IN POTATOES.

IMMEDIATE SPRAYING NECESSARY.

The attention of farmers and other potato growers is called to the fact that potato blight has appeared in the western and southern portions of the Free State. Unless energetic preventive measures are taken immediately, the disease may soon manifest itself in other parts of the country and cause immense damage and loss. A failure of the potato crop this year, through neglect of spraying, would not only be a disaster, but would be particularly deplorable in view of the fact that so far the season gives promise of a good potato harvest.

Spraying should be done when the potato tops are from twelve to fifteen inches in height. They are usually fit for a first dressing from the middle to the end of June. A second dressing should be given about a fortnight or three weeks after the first. A dry day should be selected for the work, but light rain does not seriously interfere with the success of the operation, though heavy showers may wash away the mixture before it has dried.

Detailed information on the subject will be supplied free to any person applying to the Department of Agriculture, Upper Merrion street, Dublin. All farmers should study Leaflet 14, "Prevention of Potato Blight," which can be had free of charge and post free upon application.

MINERS' WAGES.

NATIONAL AGREEMENT SIGNED.

The Joint Conference held yesterday in connection with the mines dispute lasted for about three hours, and the Miners' Executive held a separate meeting subsequently. Mr. Cook, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, made the following official statement:—

The Mining Association and the workmen's representatives met this afternoon and discussed the final settlement. The few outstanding points of difference were cleared up, and the national agreement was signed by the representatives of the coal-owners and the Miners' Federation. It will govern the wages and conditions of the workmen in all areas of the British coalfield until June 30, 1925. With regard to some of the districts, including Kent, Somerset, Forest of Dean, and Bristol, where the owners have not paid the terms agreed upon, arrangements have been made with a view to the agreement being put into force in those areas.

Mr. Evan Wiliams, the President of the Mining Association, declared definitely that the owners were "as anxious as we were that the agrement should be observed nationally, and that in signing the agreement they were determined that it should govern every district in the coalfield."

NATIONAL TEACHERS' PENSIONS.

RULES APPLICABLE TO TRANSFERS.

National Teachers' Pension Rules for 1924, issued by the Free State Minister for Education, provide that where a teacher transfers his service, with or without a break, from a school in the jurisdiction of the Government of Northern Ireland to a school in the jurisdiction of the Government of the Free State, the service of the teacher prior to his transfer shall be reckoned as service for the purpose of the National School Teachers (Ireland) Act, 1879, provided that the Ministry of Finance of Northern Ireland pays to the Superintendent a sum equal to four times the amount of all pension premiums to the credit of the teacher, together with compound interest at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum on each premium payment reckoned up to date, on which the teacher came under the jurisdiction of the Government of the Free State.

On the other hand, the new rules prescribe that in case of a teacher's transfer from the Free State to Northern Ireland the Superintendent shall pay from the Teachers' Pension Fund to the Ministry of Northern Ireland a sum equal to four times the amount of all pension premiums to the credit of the teacher, together with compound interest at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum on each premium payment reckoned up to date on which the teacher came under the jurisdiction of Northern Ireland.

TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

WORDS AND DEEDS.

HOW THE DOMINIONS WILL JUDGE.

In a leading article The Times observes:—The two days' debate on Mr. Baldwin's resolutions has had one result of high permanent value. It has shown that the Labour Ministry, the Labour Party and the Socialists have all been constrained by the pressure of obstinate and palpable facts to turn their minds to the Empire and the things of the Empire. Their heads, as Mr. Baldwin said of Mr. Johnston and Mr. Maxton, are pointed in the right direction; they are reaching out to the further shore. Nobody who knows the supporters of political Labour in this country has ever doubted their faith in the Empire and their interest in its welfare. Their feelings are as natural to them as to the rest of us. They have done their full part in making it, as they did their full share in defending it, in the war.

Unfortunately, Mr. Thomas and his colleagues seem not to understand that it is by what is done in the House, and not merely by what is said there, that the democracies of the Dominions will judge the real intentions of the Government and of the Mother Country. That is where the real danger of misunderstanding lies. The masses in the Dominions, like the masses at home, are not given to making nice distinctions of the sort dear to Mr. Asquith and Sir John Simon, and in part adopted by the Labour chiefs. They judge by broad and tangible results. They will judge the real worth of the sympathy extended to them in words—and, no doubt, with entire truthfulness—during this debate by the votes recorded at its close.

GENERAL SMUTS'S DEFEAT.

LABOUR SWEEP IN THE RAND.

Commenting upon the results so far known of the South African elections, The Times remarks:—It is clear that the fight has gone against General Smuts, and in a message to his supporters he has already admitted that. At the first glance the defeat of the Prime Minister himself seems to be the most dramatic feature of the elections, but to those who realise the way in which he fought the battles of his Party and of his colleagues in other constituencies—to the partial neglect of his own—his failure to stand before the personal attack that was launched on him will hardly come as a surprise.

The Rand was the key position of the whole electoral situation. The Prime Minister's short way with the strikers saved Johannesburg from the worst consequences of revolution in 1922, but it also left some bitter memories, and the disgraceful hooliganism that wrecked so many meetings of Government candidates had a significance of its own. Labour has gained a sweeping victory on the Rand, and, if as appears probable at the moment, the Nationalists come into office, the strength of their strange allies in the House may prove a useful check on those extreme Republicans, who have a tendency to forget the promises of the pact. Indeed, as our Cape Town Correspondent points out, it is not unlikely that General Hertzog may be forced to face another election in order to free his party from the embarrassment of its pledge not to raise the secession issue during the life of the present Parliament.

THE FRENCH PREMIER'S CHEQUERS VISIT.

TO SEE BELGIAN MINISTERS ON HIS RETURN.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Wednesday.

M. Herriot will go to London on Saturday. He received this morning M. Hymans, the Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs, who was on his way back from Geneva, and arranged with him to visit Brussels on his way back from London next week, when he will be able to acquaint M. Theunis and his Government with the substance of his conversations with Mr. Macdonald.

M. Herriot will go direct to Chequers on his arrival in London next Saturday afternoon, will be the guest of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald over the week-end, and will leave, it is expected, on Monday. It is probable that the Chequers conversations will be regarded as of a confidential character.

THE THUNDERSTORM.

DAMAGE IN CORK.

Reports from various districts in Cork yesterday showed that the thunderstorm which broke over the city on Tuesday night was very severe. All the low-lying districts were flooded, and the tramway service was temporarily disorganised. During the storm lightning struck a tree in the garden of Mardyke House, which is occupied by the Presentation Brothers. Several windows in the building were shattered and the tree was split into pieces. Houses in the neighbourhood were shaken, and much anxiety was caused amongst the residents.

Among the effects of the storm were a temporary interruption of the telephone service, while the light boxes on tramway standards used as signals by conductors were put out of order. In many houses in the city, particularly in the Gillabbey district, the electric lights were extinguished.

Some sheep were killed by lightning in the Douglas area.

HEAVY RAINFALL.

The worst thunderstorm of the year raged in Glin for some hours. It was accompanied by a very heavy rainfall. Some of the road drains were unable to carry off the surface water, and the roads suffered damage.

VIVID LIGHTNING.

The storm visited the southern part of Tipperary at about 10.30 on Tuesday night, and lasted for some hours. The lightning was extremely vivid.

ALARMED FIELD WORKERS.

In the Kilconnell district of Ballinasloe many trees were destroyed. During the storm a number of men who were working in a field were thrown down, but none of them was injured. A man who was fishing in the vicinity was also flung to the ground.

IRISH TRANSPORT UNION.

THE NEW EXECUTIVE.

The annual delegate conference of the Irish Transport and General Workers Union at 35 Rutland square, Dublin, concluded yesterday afternoon.

The following were elected general officers—

Senator T. Foran, General President; T. Kennedy, Vice-President; A. Heron, Financial Secretary; William O'Brien, General Secretary; and Cathal O'Shannon, Political Secretary.

Eleven candidates for membership of the National Executive Council were nominated, and those elected were—Messrs. Patrick Doran, Dublin; Daniel Clancy, Limerick; and George O'Driscoll, Blanchardstown (to remain in office for three years); John Breen, Tipperary; D. O'Sullivan, Cork; and Michael Hill, Cork (for two years); and Thomas Ryan, Waterford; Senator Michael Duffy, Meath; and William Stone, Dublin (for one year).

The election, which was described as "a unique experiment in the election of a trade union governing body, was conducted on the system of proportional representation, under the supervision of Mr. M. Moran, solicitor, representing the Irish Proportional Representation Society.

Mr. P. Mullane, Mallow, moved—"That this conference, representing the members of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union, calls upon the Government of the Free State and of Northern Ireland to release immediately all political prisoners."

Mr. P. J. Curran, M.C.C., Balbriggan, seconded, and the motion was passed unanimously.

A discussion, initiated with a view of urging the newly-elected National Executive to deal with any situation which might arise during their term of office, especially the taking of steps to cope with the disruptive tactics which are now being pursued, was participated in by a large number of the delegates, who expressed the hope that the members of the Union, especially in Dublin, would not allow themselves to be misled and intimidated from their allegiance to the organisation which had so well improved their conditions in the past.

BOUNDARY CORRESPONDENCE

FULL TEXT OF LETTERS WITH THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

Further correspondence between the British Government and the Government of the Free State on the subject of the boundary question was published yesterday as a White Paper and presented to the Oireachtas.

The correspondence, which extends over the period 27th May to 10th June, is a continuation of that recently published. There are nine letters in all.

MR. MACDONALD TO PRESIDENT COSGRAVE.

"NO AVOIDABLE DELAY."

SUGGESTED MEETING WITH SIR JAMES CRAIG.

The first, from the British Premier to President Cosgrave, is dated 27th May, and reads:—

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT,—After reading your statement in the Press this morning I feel, what I think nearly everyone in both countries will feel, that the time has come when you and Sir James Craig should meet to consider together how matters could be carried forward upon the lines which you both have adumbrated.

May I take this opportunity of saying that, as in our view the Chairman of the Commission should be someone not connected with any of the three Governments concerned, we are sparing no pains to find a qualified person from one of the self-governing Dominions willing, not only to accept the appointment, but also to leave for this country at once. There shall, I promise, be no avoidable delay.

"I welcome every word of goodwill. Still more I welcome actions that will bear out good words." This, I take it, was intended as your reply to Sir James Craig's plea, "Let us Irishmen in Ireland settle the matter between ourselves, even if it involves the sacrifice of our political careers."

Words such as these from the heads of the two Governments in Ireland encourage me to believe that the time which must intervene before the Chairman reaches these shores might be profitably employed by them in rendering all but the formal side of his work unnecessary.

From Wednesday, the 4th June, till after the Whitsuntide recess, I am committed to be elsewhere than in London. I write, therefore, to suggest that we should all three meet before that date. We can settle the hour and day by telegraph as soon as I learn that this proposal is agreeable to you both. The proposed meeting would, of course, be quite informal and without prejudice.

I am writing in similar terms to Sir James Craig.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE TO MR. MACDONALD.

THE FIRST ESSENTIAL.

President Cosgrave, on the 28th May, replied in the following terms:—

DEAR MR. PRIME MINISTER,—As I intimated by telegram to-day, I am willing to meet you and Sir James Craig immediately. I need hardly repeat what I said in the interview to which you refer: that if our meeting is to be fruitful there should be agreement in the first instance to have the Commission constituted without delay. So long as the Commission is not in being, I fear it cannot be expected that other discussions will bring us any nearer to a settlement. On the other hand, if after the Commission has been constituted, we come to an agreement, or nearly so, the work of the Commission will be reduced to a minimum, and the agreement or the settlement of the outstanding variance, through the action of the Commission, will have binding force forthwith, and nothing will remain but for the respective Governments to implement the Commission's decision as the Treaty requires.

We have a very heavy legislative programme on hands, besides more than normal administrative business, and you will understand that absence from Dublin is very difficult for me at this time.

MR. MACDONALD TO PRESIDENT COSGRAVE.

ARTICLE TWELVE.

OVERSEAS JUDGES ON THE TRIBUNAL.

On 2nd June the British Premier addressed the following communication to President Cosgrave:—

In the course of our conversation with Sir James Craig at Chequers on Saturday, the 31st May, I pointed out that His Majesty's Government, being bound to exercise all their powers under Article 12 of the Treaty with a view to constituting the Boundary Commission, were taking steps under Section 4 of the Judicial Committee Act, 1833, to ascertain the exact extent of those powers. In view of the constitutional importance of the questions to be referred to the Judicial Committee, it is proposed to include in the Tribunal eminent Judges from the Dominions. The Government of the Commonwealth of Australia have, at the request of the Lord Chancellor, arranged for the Chief Justice of Australia to come to England for that purpose. We hope that a Canadian Judge will also be available.

Every effort is being made by His Majesty's Government to secure within the next few weeks the services of a Chairman qualified to preside over the Boundary Commission. As the Chief Justice of Australia cannot reach London until July, some time must necessarily elapse before further formal steps can be taken. I am sure that the interval could profitably be employed, with the assistance of the proposed Chairman, in examining the general aspects of the problem and in seeing how far the desire for an agreed settlement expressed in your recent public utterances can in practice be fulfilled.

I intend, therefore, that the services of the person designated as Chairman should be available for this purpose. If, as I earnestly hope, progress can be made on these lines, the difficulties by which we are all at present confronted may well be brought within the compass of an amicable settlement.

MR. T. M. HEALY TO MR. J. H. THOMAS.

THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE.

FREE STATE NOT COMMITTED TO ACCEPTANCE.

The next communication is one from the Governor-General of the Free State to the Colonial Secretary. Dated 3rd June, it says:—

I have the honour to inform you that my Ministers note from your despatch of the 23rd ultimo that the Government of Northern Ireland have declined to nominate a representative upon the Boundary Commission, and that arising out of the position thus created His Majesty's Government have requested the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to advise them regarding the arrangements to be made by them in fulfilment of their obligations under Article 12 of the Treaty.

My Ministers deem it essential to make clear that, while they realise that His Majesty's Government are, no doubt, entitled to take advantage of the very high legal opinion available to them, my Ministers cannot be regarded as being parties to the reference to the Judicial Committee or as being in any way commited to the acceptance of the opinions which may be obtained. They are gravely concerned, however, with the prospect of a further delay in the operation of the Boundary Commission, which the seeking by His Majesty's Government of advice from the Judicial Committee appears to render possible and indeed most likely. They understood from the fifth paragraph of your despatch of the 10th April that His Majesty's Government had already considered the steps to be taken to complete the Commission, and they much regret that the contingency of a refusal by the Northern Government to appoint their representative, a course which Sir James Craig's public utterances indicated as likely, was not apparently among the matters so considered.

My Ministers feel that, in view of the extended time over which correspondence and Conference on this subject have now ranged, no further time should be lost in completing the work of the Commission, and they accordingly propose to His Majesty's Government that certain preliminaries should be put in hand forthwith. The requirement of the Treaty that the boundary should be determined in accordance with the wishes of the inhabitants, subject to the other considerations therein mentioned, renders it necessary that the wishes of the inhabitants should first be ascertained, and there is no reason why this matter should not be undertaken forthwith by the Chairman of the Commission immediately on his appointment in conjunction with the representative of the Irish Free State (Dr. Eoin McNeill). It merely involves the organisation of the requisite machinery and the collection of statistical information and raises no question of policy.

My Ministers would accordingly request His Majesty's Government to proceed with the immediate appointment of the Chairman of the Commission, so that this work may be begun without delay.

The Colonial Secretary's acknowledgment to the receipt of that despatch is dated 4th June. The letter states that His Majesty's Government was hoping to reply to the considerations advanced in the Governor-General's despatch in the course of a few days. Mr. Thomas enclosed at the same time the verbatim transcript of the statement made by Mr. Ramsay Macdonald in the House of Commons on 4th June. The Premier's statement, which was published in full in the Irish Times, concerns the British Government's decision to ask the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council "to advise them as to their legal and constitutional powers to constitute the [Boundary] Commission."

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE TO MR. MACDONALD.

"GRAVE APPREHENSION."

"SITUATION FAST BECOMING CRITICAL."

The next communication in the White Paper is numbered 26, and was read by the President in the Dail yesterday. It was addressed by the President to Mr. Ramsay Macdonald on 4th June, and reads:—

1. I have given earnest consideration to your letter of yesterday, in which you express the opinion that the interval which will elapse before you receive a report from the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council might profitably be employed, with the assistance of the Chairman of the Boundary Commission, in examining the general aspect of the problem with a view to seeing how far an agreed settlement is possible. I regret that I cannot accept this view for the reasons which I gave you on Saturday—namely, that such a course would be bound to afford opportunities for suggestions from one quarter or other of a departure from strict impartiality on his part, which would be a source of serious embarrassment in the judicial task which he is to undertake.

2. The gravest apprehension is felt in Ireland regarding the manner in which Clause 12 of the Treaty has been canvassed. Since February last it would appear as if the terms of the clause—viz., the wishes of the inhabitants—were to be subordinated to whims of persons in positions of authority and power. Further examination and approaches towards possible agreement in these circumstances would, of necessity, imply that the rights guaranteed by this Article are in jeopardy, and I have never had any authority to agree to any abrogation of the rights of the inhabitants as defined in the Article.

3. You mentioned in the course of the discussion on Saturday last that you were in a position to show me your signature appointing the Chairman. I must say that in the opinion of my Government—with which I concur—the appointment should be immediately announced. There is a large amount of preliminary work to be done which could be undertaken forthwith. It is evident that a census of the wishes of the inhabitants must be taken before the Commission can settle down to consider the problems which they will finally have to determine. This is purely a matter of machinery for the ascertaining of facts and statistics, so that they may be available for the Commission to work upon. The collection of this information is, in the opinion of my Government, a duty which should be undertaken at once by the Chairman in conjunction with our representative, and we have addressed an official despatch to Mr. Thomas on these lines.

4. I cannot conclude without urging upon you most earnestly that the delay which has occurred in the setting up of the Commission is causing very grave anxiety and unrest in this country. I realise that you desire to obtain the best legal advice possible as to the steps His Majesty's Government must take to implement Clause 12, and I understand that the refernce to a Judicial Committee, on which it is proposed to have the Chief Justice of Australia as a member, must entail delay, but it will be represented here publicly and otherwise, and will obtain some measure of credence, that the British Government must have known all along that Sir James Craig would decline to appoint his representative, and that the reference to the Judicial Committee is a device to cause further delay, and if possible to shelve the whole matter.

5. This is the type of criticism which is most pronounced here, and it is strengthened by the daily references to conferences and solutions in which it is implied that the wishes of the inhabitants are to be ignored. The situation is fast becoming critical, and I shall find it necessary in the near future to give a day for discussion in the Dail of the whole problem. I am very much concerned at the prospect of such a discussion and its possible outcome, unless some definite progress towards the operation of the Commission can be shown. Mr. Thomas wrote me on the 10th April that all the necessary steps had been worked out in advance. The position now is that delay follows delay, and if we point to the assurances which we have received we will be countered by an inquiry as to what tangible evidence of progress we can show. The immediate appointment of the Chairman and the starting of the work on the preliminaries would make matters much less difficult, and would be regarded by our people as practical evidence that Article 12 is being fully carried out.

MR. MACDONALD TO PRESIDENT COSGRAVE.

THE SPIRIT OF THE TREATY.

"BRINGING BACK PEACE TO THE WORLD."

Replying to the above communication on 6th June, the British Premier wrote as follows:—

May I thank you for your prompt reply to my letter of the 3rd instant? A communication from the Secretary of State informing you of the Chairman's appointment has crossed your letter, and I am glad to feel that this will make matters less difficult so far as you are concerned. Personally, it was a great relief to me when a point was reached at which it was possible to make a full announcement to Parliament, and I am sure you are right in thinking that the Dail should have an opportunity of discussing the matter as soon as possible. For without such discussion the public cannot well grasp the practical difficulties with which Governments have to deal.

Your despatch requesting the completion of the constitution of the Boundary Commission was dated the 26th April, and the appointment of the British representative was announced on the 4th June. We had made up our minds to appoint a Chairman from one of the Dominions for reasons with which you, I am sure, agree. It was only possible to approach one Dominion and one person at a time, and we are fortunate in having been able to announce our appointment within six weeks. A debate in the Dail will enable considerations of this kind to be explained to the public.

Mr. Thomas was quite correct in saying that the necessary steps had been worked out in advance in his own department. The steps included proposals for dealing with the known contingency that the Government of Northern Ireland might refuse to appoint their representative. But we should get into difficulties if we try to deal with contingencies before they have actually arisen. A formal request to appoint their representative was addressed to the Government of Northern Ireland on the 29th April. Their refusal was dated Saturday, the 10th May. The matter then became one for consideration by the Cabinet, and its decisions could not have been reached so rapidly as they were reached if it had not been for the careful survey of the ground made long before by the legal advisers of the Government. The despatch conveying our decisions was dated the 23rd May. The papers we are both publishing to-day will enable the Dail to appreciate the significance of these dates.

It is no less necessary that the public should understand the importance of securing that the Commission is legally appointed. We are dealing with the terms of a statute. As Executive Governments, our opinions as to whether the Commission is constituted when two members are appointed are of no legal value. We must ascertain the law, and we are losing no time having resort to the tribunal designated for the purpose by our Constitution. If the Judicial Committee should find that the appointments of the Free State and British representatives alone suffice to constitute the Commission, we on our side will have no hesitation in acting on that finding.

In these circumstances I feel that your proposal scarcely differs in principle from my own, except that under my proposal Sir James Craig, as I judge from the letter he has sent me, would be willing that someone from his side should join in the preliminary studies which are just as necessary for an agreed settlement as for an award by the Commission. I do not clearly see the distinction between the inquiries which you think the Chairman should make with Mr. MacNeill and the kind of exploration which I suggested at our interview.

Would not the objection you mention really apply equally strongly to both our proposals? The Chairman will surely, having regard to his judicial training, safeguard himself while acting as a mediator against the danger of prejudicing his opinion if in the end he is called upon to make an award in a judicial capacity. In any case, he will have to inform himself as to the scope and character of the problem, and I should have thought that there was a good deal of preliminary work he could do. Surely the right course is to place all these considerations before him when he arrives, so that he may form his own judgment.

With the apprehensions to which you refer in the second paragraph of your letter, I find it difficult to deal, but I cannot recall any single utterance either by myself or any of my colleagues which would justify them. We cannot control irresponsible utterances in the Press or on platforms. I am sure that neither you, Sir James Craig, nor I would like to be held responsible for everything printed in our respective areas. But, none the less, this aspect of the matter to which you refer is one which I view with the gravest concern. The Treaty is but the dry bones of a settlement. In the last two years you have clothed it with flesh, but we have yet to breathe into its frame the living spirit of reconciliation.

The feeling grows upon me that this we shall only do by remembering that there are interests wider than those which preoccupy our minds in these two Islands. I want to enlist you, your Government and all Ireland, including the North, in the cause of bringing back peace to the world. Unless or until we can show that we ourselves know how to keep the law and to create friendship between ourselves in these Islands, we can do little or nothing severally or jointly to bring back the verities of peace either to Europe or the world at large. I ask you to tell the Dail and, through them, the people that they represent that if Irishmen can lay the foundations of a true and lasting peace not only amongst themselves, but with us, they will be rendering Europe in this distracted juncture of its history a service which future generations will not forget.

I will ask Sir James Craig to give a similar message to his own Parliament. I think that when the Dail discusses this matter, it should have the full correspondence before it. I would, therefore, suggest that the despatches and letters subsequent to those just published should be printed as soon as possible after Whitsuntide.

I hope you got home on Sunday not too weary after your long journey.

On 6th June the Colonial Secretary, in a letter to the Governor-General, communicated the text of a statement made in the House of Commons by the Premier, announcing that Mr. Justice Feetham had been selected to represent His Majesty's Government on the Boundary Commission.

MR. J. H. THOMAS TO MR. T. M. HEALY.

THE PRELIMINARY TASK.

In a further communication to the Governor-General on 12th June the Colonial Secretary wrote:—

The matters raised in your Excellency's despatch of 3rd June on the subject of the Boundary Commission have, in part, been dealt with by my replies of June 4th and June 6th. I avail myself of this opportunity of assuring your Ministers that when I signed the despatch of the 10th April all the contingencies which have since arisen had been carefully thought out. It will be evident from the dates of the various despatches recently published (Cmd. 2155) that no avoidable delay ensued, considering the gravity of the decisions which His Majesty's Government had to take. I note, moreover, that your Ministers do not desire to be parties to the reference to the Judicial Committee or wish to commit themselves to agreement with its findings.

In regard to the proposal that the preliminary task of ascertaining the wishes of the population should be put in hand before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has tendered its advice, your Ministers will no doubt agree that no decision can properly be taken upon this point until it has been considered by the Chairman-designate of the Commission. Mr. Justice Feetham is expected to reach England from South Africa at the end of June, and it is the intention of His Majesty's Government to bring your Ministers' proposal to his notice immediately upon his arrival in this country.

LETTERS TO SIR JAMES CRAIG.

The correspondence issued from the Colonial Office in London last night includes, in addition to the letters given above, several that passed between Sir James Craig and Mr. Ramsay Macdonald.

Sir James Craig, in a letter referring to the setting up of the Judicial Committee says:—"I am always available and willing to assist in every way the consummation of this, the only statesmanlike, solution of the problem."

In a letter to Sir James Craig, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald said:—"I am most anxious that throughout Ireland, and in Great Britain also, the importance of the bearing of the Irish question on the problem of world peace shall be constantly borne in mind. The settlement of the Irish question in a spirit of goodwill will be an example and encouragement to all efforts for peace throughout the world, and the effects of what we now do, or fail to do, will be felt far beyond these islands, and beyond our own time."

OTTAWA, Wednesday.

Mr. Justice Duff, of the Supreme Court of Canada, sails for London to-morrow, in order to sit on the Judicial Committee in connection with the Irish Boundary question.—(Reuter.)

RAILWAYS BILL IN SENATE.

LARGE ECONOMIES NEED NOT BE EXPECTED.

BARONIAL GUARANTEES QUESTION

The chief business in the Senate yesterday was the second reading of the Railways Bill. While none of the Senators expressed warm approval of the Bill, none of them condemned it.

Mr. John Bagwell described it as "amalgamation by compulsion," and confessed that he would like amalgamation brought about by other means. He warned the House that the bill would not effect large economies in the immediate future.

Mr. Guinness pointed out that the cost of labour on the railways was one of the chief obstacles that must be overcome before there could be a cheap and efficient service.

Several members expressed the view that the period during which the baronial guarantees would be paid should be extended to twenty years.

THE SENATE.

BRUSSELS CONFERENCE.

REPRESENTATIVES FROM FREE STATE.

Lord Glenavy, the Chairman, announced that a communication had been received from the Minister for Industry and Commerce, stating that an International Parliamentary Commercial Conference was to be held at Brussels from the 23rd to the 26th of this month. The Free State had accepted an invitation to be represented there, and the suggestion was that the representation should consist of a delegation of five. That delegation might be composed of members of the Senate or of the Dail.

The business, among other matters, would include Exchange and Customs Barriers, Production and Exchange of Foodstuffs, Internationalisation of Company Law, Enforcing Judgments of Commercial Tribunals, Priority of Registration of Trade Marks. If any member of the Senate would like to be a member of the delegation, he should communicate with the Clerk of the Dail, but there was one note of warning, and that was that members of the delegation would have to pay their own expenses. (Laughter.)

THE MUSEUM.

The Chairman, continuing, said that he had received a communication from the Superintendent of the Guard to the effect that the Museum authorities were anxious, if possible, to throw open certain portions of the Museum to visitors during the month of August, but that they found it difficult to do that unless they got possession of some portion of the premises that were occupied by the Senate. They asked that two rooms upstairs, which the Senate used as Committee rooms, might be made available. He thought that there would be no objection, and that the Senate would be pleased to give the Museum authorities the two rooms during the month of August. (Hear, hear.)

The suggestion was approved.

On the motion of Senator S. L. Brown, the final stages of the Sligo Lighting and Electric Power Bill were passed.

Leave was given to introduce the Pilotage Orders Confirmation Bill.

ROAD FUND.

There was a motion that the Road Fund (Advances) Bill be read a second time, and the Chairman said that it was one that might be passed that day.

Sir John Keane asked for some information as to the purport of the bill, and as to the policy of the Government with regard to the maintenance of the main roads. He thought that the upkeep of those roads should be borne by the Central Fund, and take from the shoulders of the agricultural ratepayers.

President Cosgrave explained that the Road Fund was made up from the receipts from motor taxes. For a period of something like five years from the 1st July, 1923, that fund would be supplemented by a fund, estimated at sixpence in the £, on the ratable valuation of each district in the country, to repair bridges and roads damaged during the disturbed period.

The reason for the bill was that the Government policy with regard to the roads for a period of eighteen months or two years, dating from December last, was to spend something like two millions on the roads, and to reserve a quarter of a million up to, he thought, the 1st of April, 1925. The Road Fund would not be in a position to discharge all liabilities in connection with that scheme until the 31st March, 1925, and possibly not then, because the sixpence in the £ would not have materialised by that time. The bill, therefore, was to enable a sum of £150,000 to be borrowed, in order that the Government policy with regard to that service could be carried out by a certain date, without interruption.

A considerable sum would have to be expended on steam-rollers, etc., and it was to enable the fund to be financed so as to discharge these liabilities that the bill was being promoted.

Sir Thomas Esmonde said that, in his opinion, it was an extremely good measure, and that the Senate would be well advised to see that it was put into operation as soon as possible. He thought that preference should be given to the main roads.

President Cosgrave added that he understood the Minister was advised by the Road Board, on which motorists were represented, who would attend to their interests.

The second reading of the bill was agreed to.

The Standing Orders were suspended, and the Companies (Reconstitution of Records) Bill was passed through all its stages.

RAILWAYS BILL.

REASONS FOR WELCOMING IT.

The second stage of the Railways Bill, 1924, was considered.

Mr. H. S. Guinness, supporting a motion for the second reading, said that if the Government had been left to itself the bill would not have been introduced. Pressure was exerted by two important sections of the community, and, with the example of the amalgamations in England, the Government undertook to group or unify the railways of the Free State.

He welcomed the bill, not altogether for the reasons which induced the Government to undertake the legislation, but from the broader aspect—from the view that there were very few countries in which the unification of railways could be carried out so easily as in Ireland.

When President Cosgrave introduced the bill he said that the unification principle would reduce working expenses by the centralisation of management, the standardisation of rolling stock, and the placing of contracts on more favourable terms for coal, stores, etc. That was undoubtedly the case. On the other hand, those economies might be disappointing in early years, and might disappear when the claims for the betterment of railways, more particularly of the newly-absorbed railways, came on. Those claims were always raised when the weak and feeder lines were taken over by larger and more highly-equipped companies that operated the main trunk lines. It was, however, in the reduction of working expenses that the real relief would come; but so long as the higher standard of wages was maintained little improvement could be expected.

THREE CLASSES.

There were three sections concerned in the railways—the proprietors, who provided the capital, and who were entitled to a return on their money; the workmen, who were entitled to reasonable remuneration; and the traders, who were entitled to facilities at a reasonable cost. The proprietors received £3 18s. per cent. on their invested capital in 1913 and £2 15s. per cent. in 1923—a decrease in income of 30 per cent. The workman in 1913 received an average wage of 30s. for a sixty-hours' week, and in 1923 the average wage was 54s. for a week of forty-eight hours. The railway workers' wages were thus increased by 273 per cent. As regarded the travelling public and trading community, in 1913 a customer paid 20s. as a charge for travelling or for freight on goods, in 1923 he had to pay 48s., an increase of 140 per cent.

The conclusion they would draw from those figures was that the labour bill on Irish railways had swollen to an unprecedented rate, and that the proprietors and users suffered most grievously. There would, therefore, be no relief to the public in cost of transport until labour would agree to accept more reasonable remuneration for its services.

With regard to the clause in the bill dealing with baronial guaranteed railways, he said that these lines were built at the request of the local residents, on whom they conferred substantial benefits, and it was not unreasonable that those who derived such advantages should in some measure pay for the cost of the undertaking. Two hundred and sixty-six miles of railway had been constructed in these districts at £1,144,000 of guaranteed capital. As a contribution to the interest the baronies concerned guaranteed £28,102, which was equivalent to less than 2½ per cent. of the capital involved.

It was proposed under the bill that that contribution should continue for ten years. That was unreasonable, and he would appeal to the Minister to delete the ten years' limit, and allow the statutory obligation to the baronies to remain as a permanent charge as the burden on the rates was infinitesimal, being less than 1s. in the £ on the valuation. If it was put to the baronies whether they would do without the railway or provide the moderate interest, there was not the shadow of doubt as to what the answer would be.

Apart from that consideration, he welcomed the bill as good legislation, and the Minister deserved congratulations on the result.

THE PROBLEM EXPLAINED.

Mr. John Bagwell said that there would be many answers given to the question—"What is the Irish railway problem?" The ordinary citizen would say that the fares were very much too high; the traders would say that the rates were very much too high, that they were a great burden on the trading interest of the country, and, consequently, all consumers would say it was a very serious problem. Then the railway shareholder would complain that his dividends were too low, and in some cases say that he got no dividend at all. The railway trade unions would say that in some cases the wages paid were just enough, and that in other cases they were nearly good enough.

His definition of the problem was that the percentage of expenditure to gross receipts was now 82 per cent., and in 1913 it was 62. Every problem arose out of that. The Government definition of the problem, he had no doubt, would include all these various complaints that had been referred to, and possibly a good many more.

The principle of the bill, he continued, was clearly amalgamation by compulsion. Personally, he was against compulsion in matters of that kind. The principle, in his opinion, should be consolidation by consent, and that should come about by the gradual process of the pressure of economic laws. He realised that that would take a long time, very much longer than the limit in the compulsory bill.

The bill had occupied the attention of the Government, and the Government evidently thought that the problem would not wait. There were certain lines which would be embraced which were in an impoverished condition, and it was questionable whether they would be able to carry on and afford service. That was the reason for doing something quickly and not waiting for the gradual working out on economic lines.

The bill was well arranged and well thought out, and he wished it every success.

NO MONOPOLY.

There was now no railway monopoly, because on the roads they had a most effective competition, which the trade of the country would always have to rely on to restrain railways, even if they have no tribunal from increasing rates.

He was not so optimistic as the promoters that the bill would result in important economies, and he would suggest to the Senators that they should not have the idea that because of amalgamation there would be great economies of all kinds. No doubt there would be economies in some directions, but the saving at the beginning would be very small. Under the head of railway works, his personal opinion was that there would be no great saving.

With respect to baronial guarantee, he suggested that the Minister should consider whether the ten years' limit might be extended to twenty years. The difficulty would, of course, arise in twenty years, but it would put off the evil day for ten years.

NEGATIVE UNANIMITY.

The Earl of Kerry said that he had followed the discussions which had taken place in the Dail with very great interest, if with some misapprehension. It was true the bill was received with great unanimity, but it was a somewhat negative kind of unanimity, and no one had shown much enthusiasm for it except the Government.

He should confess that he did not like the bill, but he would not vote against it.

Mr. Bennett said that he regarded the bill as an honest attempt to meet the situation in the country. He thought that the railway tribunal might have been larger.

Mr. M. O'Dea complained of high rates and the lack of standardisation.

Mr. McLaughlin said that the success of the bill would depend largely on the constitution of the tribunal, and in the selection of that body it was to be hoped that the Government would be guided solely by the desire to secure the services of men most capable of administering that part of the bill. While welcoming it, he would like to urge the absolute necessity of increasing the scope of the bill. The people of Donegal had been very much disappointed by not being included. There were two railways of three feet gauge, one of which had 93 per cent. of its mileage in the Free State and the other 99 per cent., the remainder being in the Northern area. It was hardly fair that these Donegal lines should not participate in the blessings of this amalgamated scheme.

Mr. O'Farrell said that he was not surprised that Senator Guinness, as a railway director, and Senator Bagwell, as a railway manager, should welcome the bill. The bill was a railway shareholders' bill, drafted in consultation with representatives of the railway companies and without consultation with any of the bodies in the country who would be affected by the proposed amalgamation. Clauses 53 and 54 guaranteed in perpetuity to the railway companies their average revenue for the years 1911, 1912, and 1913, which, as everybody knew, were the very best years in the history of the railways. One result of that scheme would be, if the bill did not prove a success, that the new amalgamated company would find itself face to face with nationalisation, and then a far higher price would have to be paid to the shareholders by the community than would otherwise be the case.

It was strange that the State should accept responsibility for supporting the companies against the interests of the traders and the public generally. There was not a provision in the bill to enable the Railway Tribunal to effect any real control. Section 58 gave the Minister power to make certain orders calling upon the railway companies to give the public certain facilities; but if the companies came forward and showed that to carry out those orders would in any way affect the financial equilibrium of the company, those orders would not be enforced. Consequently that provision was mere eye-wash.

WAGES.

The railway companies, contrary to all other companies in the country, were guaranteed their net revenue. Senator Guinness repeated the plaintive cry about high wages, and he contrasted the shilling and three halfpence per hour which railway employés were now paid with the fourpence per hour which they received in 1913. If it was expected that no progress could be made in the country until the old rate of wages was reverted to, then he could tell them that there would be no progress during the life of this generation.

Any Commission in recent times that had weighed up the whole case had, by a majority, come to the conclusion that nationalisation was the only solution of the railway problem in the interest of the community.

Mr. Lenihan said that he could not support the second reading of the bill, because in Committee in the Dail, an amendment had been introduced which he regarded as confiscation of the rights of the ratepayers, who had guaranteed the Bantry extension line and other lines in the County of Cork.

THE INTERESTING THING.

Sir Thomas Esmond said that the interesting thing about the situation was that apparently everybody was going to vote for the bill, and he did not propose to interfere with the harmony of that arrangement. He thought that members of the Senate took rather a gloomy view of the future of the country. Whatever opinion they might have as to the details of the bill, he thought that they must all admit that the Government had faced a difficult situation with a good deal of courage.

Personally, he was sorry that the Government could not see its way to encourage, somehow, competition among the Irish railways. The question of the light railways, and the baronial guaranteed railways, was undoubtedly one of difficulty. Some of those lines were paying their way, while others were not, and it was proposed that the ratepayers should be made responsible for the amount of the deficit for a period of ten years. He hoped to see the time when there would be co-operation between the users of the railways and the railway companies, as well as co-operation between the companies, the public, and the labour unions.

Railway shareholders had come in for hard knocks. They were an important section of the community, whose prosperity was vital to the development of the country, and they had every claim, moral and otherwise, to get a fair return on the capital that they had invested.

"PROFITEERING."

Mr. Barrington said that, as one who had devoted practically all his life to the extension of railways in Ireland, he believed that the wages bill could be reduced by 30 per cent. without affecting the rate of wages to workmen. The time to ask for a reduction in wages of the workmen was when the cost of living came down. He urged the Government to take the question of dealing with "profiteers" into consideration.

In the West of Ireland, where two trains ran in the day, because they did not run within the eight hours two sets of men had to be employed, and, no doubt, the engine drivers and others spent a great portion of their eight hour day in their gardens. He did not think it would be asking anything unreasonable to get rid of that redundancy, and the result would be a saving of 30 per cent. in the expenses without reducing wages.

With regard to baronial railways, he urged the Government to find out whether the baronies would not be injuriously affected by the clause Sub-Section 6 of Section 63.

Sir John Keane said that Mr. O'Farrell had referred to the generosity of the Government in taking what was known as the pre-war revenue as the standard revenue on which future dividends were to be fixed, but he suggested that the capital sunk in past years was by no means adequately represented by taking the standard revenue as the basis of dividends, and there existed a large amount of capital which, under the present arrangement, would never receive a penny dividend. Where was the capital for development to come from? That was one of the great difficulties.

Mr. Farren said that the bill was a good one, and that it would be easier to accomplish complete nationalisation of the railways when the bill had been passed into law.

CONDITIONAL BAPTISM.

President Cosgrave said that, on the whole, he was prepared to take it that the measure had received what he might call a conditional baptism. Mr. O'Farrell made a mistake when he said that they took the very best three years for an average. The three best years were not taken. The bill was a just bill to railway shareholders, who were getting more than they got in any pre-war period—not very much—but on that basis they were getting a fair and square deal, and they were entitled to it.

The men who in time of need came forward and put a lot of money into a great machine, such as they had in the Irish railways, were entitled to due consideration to their property. The Government had given that consideration, and they had in addition stereotyped individual enterprise in the matter of the management of the railways. To that extent there was given a very great chance to private enterprise to work that big machine.

The business of the country was their business and what they made it. He was inclined to agree with foreigners when they spoke of the possibilities of the country and its developments, which they had all prognosticated rather than with statements made in that Chamber and in the Dail that the prospects for the country did not look very bright. The country would develop and prosper if every one of them put sufficient industry and intellect into their work for it, and had sufficient faith and hope for the future.

THE TRIBUNAL.

With respect to the question about the Railway Tribunal and what the outside members of it would do, he would like to say that that would be as much members of it as the permanent members in cases where their interests were concerned. The points raised would, he thought, be best met in the committee stage.

It was anticipated that there would be some revival of the enterprise under this bill. If an area of fifty miles square necessitated or offered an inducement for development, surely it would be their business to enter into such a matter as that. If they did not they would not be capable of doing the work which it was hoped they would do under this bill. Every possible relief of rates and fares ought be one of their first considerations. He thought the most hopeful outlook came from those who had practical experience in the management of railways.

With regard to the general lines of the bill, as Senator Bagwell stated, they had been two years considering the matter. There was an alternative proposal submitted—grouping against unification—but it did not commend itself to them. Grouping might ultimately lead to unification. In England they found it possible to run a big concern with a capital of five hundred millions, and was it not possible to run as efficiently a concern in this country, with a capital of twenty-seven millions.

If they had faith and hope in the future the bill ought to be a success. As far as the treatment of shareholders was concerned, they were not considered in a generous spirit, but in a just spirit, and the Government considered that they were entitled to their dividends.

Mr. Love said that he supported Senator Lenehan's request for an undertaking in connection with the baronial guaranteed lines in the Co. Cork.

The President said that the earnings of these lines would not justify the Minister in giving the undertaking asked.

The bill was read a second time. The Committee stage will be taken on Wednesday next.

RECONSTRUCTION.

The House next considered the Dublin Reconstruction (Emergency Provisions) Bill on the Report stage.

Mr. G. L. Brown moved on behalf of the Minister an agreed amendment deleting Section 2. He was not satisfied that it would not work injustice in the case of owners of sites in O'Connell street and the districts to be reconstructed by reason of the method of direction, practically given to the arbitrator, as to how he should arrive at the value of a site. An arrangement had been come to that the arbitrator was to arrive at the value of a site in the ordinary way, the Corporation was to pay out of its pocket the value found to be that of the mere site, and the Minister for Finance was to pay the difference between the mere value of the site and the value of the site to the owner.

The amendment was adopted.

Mr. Brown moved a further amendment to insert the following new paragraph:—"Where the land is the site, or part of the site, of a building or buildings in respect of which a judge has made a report under Section 15 of the Damage to Property (Compensation) Act, 1923 (No. 15 of 1923), the arbitrator appointed for the purpose of settling compensation shall, in addition to any determination which he shall make for that purpose, also fix and determine the value of the land without such building or buildings and as if such report had not been made."

The amendment was adopted.

The Report stage of the bill was concluded.

The House adjourned until 3 p.m. to-day.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE'S STATEMENT.

respects Northern Ireland exactly as set out in the Act of 1920. The period of postponement to which the Provisional Government assented was a period to enable further consideration to be given to proposals for the improvement of the Constitution of the Council. As I have pointed out, some such improvements are practically vital, as, for instance, substitutes must be found for the Lord Lieutenant and the Joint Exchequer Board.

I must challenge the statement that the Provisional Government was not an Executive Government. It was, in the fullest sense, and though in some respects that was not at first admitted by the British, the Provisional Government was an Executive Government and performed the acts of Executive Government ultimately without challenge. Some of these acts must be known to deputies. Some of them are recorded in official documents, such as prorogation of Parliament, known to every citizen of the Saorstat.

STEPS TOWARDS COMMISSION.

I will now deal very shortly with the steps which we took from the commencement in regard to Clause 12.

1. Clause 12 did not become operative until December, 1922.

2. Irregular activities were at this time at their worst, and continued so until the spring of 1923.

3. The preparation of the Government case went on during this period.

4. We appointed our representative in July of 1923, and called upon the British Government to take steps on their part for completing the Commission.

5. The General Election here took place in August, 1923, and on 22nd September, 1923, the British Government invited us to a Conference to discuss matters arising out of Article 12.

6. We agreed to attend this Conference "in the hope that a basis might be found for the harmonious co-operation of the whole Irish people for their common weal."

7. Sir James Craig also accepted the invitation, and it became a question of fixing the date for the Conference.

8. The Imperial Conference sat during October and November, and the Duke of Devonshire, who was to preside, found it impossible to afford time for the Conference during its sittings.

9. A tentative arrangement that the Conference should be held on 15th November was prevented by the political crisis in Great Britain with its resulting General Election.

10. Immediately upon the foundation of the new British Government, the matter was reopened, and the Conference took place on the 1st February.

SIR J. CRAIG'S ILLNESS.

11. The Conference adjourned to enable certain proposals to be examined. Our examination was over on 16th February, when we asked for an immediate re-assembly.

12. Sir James Craig was ill at this stage, and this occasioned further delay. The Conference re-assembled on the 24th April. It failed to come to an agreement. On the 26th April we asked the British Government to take immediate steps to complete the constitution of the Boundary Commission.

13. The British Government immediately asked the Northern Government to appoint their representative. The Northern Government refused, and the British Government requested the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to advise them as to the steps which they must take, in the circumstances, to carry out their part of the bargain.

14. We protested against the delay occasioned by this request, and urged the immediate appointment of the Chairman, so that work might be begun at once on the important preliminary of ascertaining the wishes of the inhabitants.

15. The Chairman has now been appointed, and will arrive in a few weeks.

16. The delays will, therefore, be seen to have occurred from causes without our control, and we have continuously urged for expedition. (See particularly No. 11 in correspondence published.)

REASON FOR CONFERENCES.

The Government has been criticised for entering conferences in relation to the matters arising out of Article 12. Their reason for accepting the invitations is clearly stated in our despatch of the 8th of October, in which we say that it would, indeed, be a source of gratification if a discussion could open up a prospect of remedying the unsatisfactory position of Northern Ireland in relation to the rest of the country in a manner compatible with our trust to our people, and fair and reasonable to the parties concerned.

We have never regarded a divided Ireland with the Boundary Commission as an ideal solution. We desire the unity of Ireland, and we wished to leave no stone unturned to assist in securing that end.

The Conferences did not arrive at agreement, but that they failed cannot be ascribed to any lack of endeavour and goodwill on our part.

The Government has been urged to engage in no further conferences. We do not expect any further conferences, nor do we see any likelihood that results would accrue from them. So far as we are concerned, our position is that the preliminary work of the Conference shall begin immediately and without waiting for the further steps, if any, which the British Government may be advised to take to fulfil their end of the contract.

At the same time, as we have already stated, we are willing at all times to consider, even during the sitting of the Commission, any representations which would offer hope of a genuine settlement on the basis of the reunion of Ireland.

With regard to the fixing of a time limit, no time limit has been fixed by the Treaty, and consequently we must apply the general principle of allowing a reasonable time for the carrying out of the contract. I can give my assurance that the Government will not agree to any unnecessary delay.

LETTER TO BRITISH PREMIER.

I think, sir, I may conclude by reading the letter which I sent in answer to the letter from the British Prime Minister on the 4th June. I mention this letter, because it was written before any notice of motion had been given. (President Cosgrave here read his letter to Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, dated 4th June, which is included in the additional correspondence circulated last night).

There was an answer to that letter of mine from the British Prime Minister, dated the 6th June, which has been published. My answer sent last night reads:—

DEAR MR. PRIME MINISTER,—

1. A debate upon the Boundary question, which began on Friday, is being resumed on Wednesday next, and I shall take the opportunity on that day to lay before the Dail the text of the later correspondence between us on this subject.

2. There are a few points arising out of your letter of the 6th instant which, perhaps, call for some observations from me. The most important, in your view, that there is scarcely any difference in principle between our proposal, that the Chairman and Dr. Eoin MacNeill should proceed with the preliminary work of ascertaining the wishes of the inhabitants, and your suggestion that the Chairman, with Dr. MacNeill and a representative from Sir James Craig, should join in preliminary studies with a view to an agreed settlement being arrived at.

3. The major difference is that our proposal involves merely a question of setting up the necessary machinery for ascertaining facts and raises no point of policy. The other proposal postulates explorations for agreement which the principles have already failed, after repeated conferences, to reach. If agreement can be reached it must be reached, not upon the basis of my views or of Sir James Craig's views, but upon the basis laid down in Article 12 of respect for the wishes of the inhabitants of the area affected and for the economic and geographic conditions.

4. The possibility of agreement depends, therefore, upon considerations which have to be ascertained, and our proposal is that the work of ascertaining these considerations should be embarked upon at once. This work Dr. MacNeill is ready to co-operate in at a moment's noticee.

5. As far as we are concerned, we will cordially co-operate in any action which will make for friendship between ourselves in these islands, but we are satisfied that any departure from the elementary democratic principle enshrined in Article 12 would not tend in that direction. We feel that it is essential for the maintenance of harmony between nations that the wishes of the inhabitants should be a primary consideration in any system of government, and we are prepared to translate this view into practice to secure not alone a spirit of brotherhood amongst ourselves, but, so far as it can be accomplished, amongst the whole human race.

6. This is the spirit in which I addressed the Assembly of the League of Nations last September.

7. I cannot conclude without assuring you that I appreciate fully His Majesty's Government's desire to have the highest available opinion as to their course of procedure, under their Statutes, for giving effect to Treaty obligations entered into by them, and I also appreciate that the delay which is caused thereby may be to a certain extent inevitable. At the same time, I would urge upon His Majesty's Government that it is in the interests of all parties concerned that existing sources of possible irritation be removed at once, and accordingly that every effort should be made to have all outstanding matters in regard to the setting up of the Boundary Commission composed at the earliest possible moment.—Sincerely yours,

(Signed) L. T. MACCOSGAIR.

At the conclusion of the reading of this letter, President Cosgrave resumed his seat.

MR. MILROY'S REPLY.

Mr. Milroy said that he did not approach this matter from a party point of view. He deprecated the suggestion that he introduced it as an electioneering dodge.

President Cosgrave—I did not make such a statement.

Mr. Milroy, continuing, said that the President's statement was only a faint echo of what was said outside. They should face England and assert the rights that they obtained under the Treaty. Deputy Johnson's amendment was one which he could not accept, because it obscured the meaning of the vital matter which he had raised.

With regard to the agreement between the Provisional Government and the British Government in connection with the Council of Ireland, he asked on what date the agreement was arrived at and the precise nature of the agreement. Where was the authentic document embodied in that agreement. As an ordinary layman he considered that agreements between Governments should have legislative expression. They were told that the only legislative measure was the Irish Free State (Consequential Provisions) Act. The President seemed to indicate that publicity of that Act was equivalent to law in this country. Whether that Act was binding on the British or not did not concern them. What did concern them was whether it was binding on them. If it was, it should be embodied in an enactment of the Dail.

He presumed that they would have to take the pronouncement of their own law officer as the definite and authentic judgment on the subject, and if that were so a British Minister in another place misled the House.

DIVISION NOT WANTED.

President Cosgrave intervened, and asked the deputy to examine his subject and see what was the point in dispute. If there was any variation in the case the ex-Attorney-General made let the deputy point out where it was.

Mr. Milroy said that he was discussing the variation of the Treaty. The important matter was that with regard to the agreement one statement was made in the Dail and an entirely different one in the British House. He had no desire to create an embarrassing situation for the Executive Council, or to add one iota to their already heavy burden. He did not propose to press his motion to a division, but he wanted to make it perfectly clear what would be the inevitable consequence of the non-observance by Great Britain of the part of the Treaty under discussion.

At the present moment the position of the Nationalists and Catholics in the six counties was one of helpless impotence. Driven out of every sphere of political and administrative life, they looked to the assembly he addressed to see that they were not abandoned. Their opponents in the North-East argued that the Treaty did not over-ride the Act of 1920. The latter was simply a creature of the British Parliament, which could unmake it, but the Treaty was a solemn international contract entered into by equals. The proposals of 1920 were never intended as a solution of the problem that existed, but rather as an expedient to thwart the aspirations of the people. The Treaty guaranteed those people certain rights. The attitude of the British Government all during the period when the matter of the clause in the Treaty was under discussion gave even the most patient the impression that they desired either to cancel those guarantees or to allow them to become a dead letter.

The debate was adjourned till Friday.

THE DAIL.

COMPENSATION SECURITIES.

The Speaker took the chair at ten minutes past three.

The Minister for Finance introduced a bill entitled the Damage to Property (Compensation) (Amendment) Bill, and said that it was to give power to the Minister for Finance to issue securities in payment of compensation in "report" cases. In decree or award cases, under the principal Act, securities could be issued to a certain amount in payment of the awards. By an omission, no such provision had been made with regard to report cases, and it was plainly unfair that those cases, where the payment was more or less ex gratia, should have the right to be paid entirely in cash when the others had to accept securities.

TAILTEANN GAMES ACCOUNTS.

The first interim report of the Committee on Public Accounts was before the Dail. In the report reference was made to a statement attributed to the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Tailteann Games organisation that "the accounts of the Council were duly audited by the Comptroller and Accountant-General," and the subsequent admission of the Chairman of the Finance Committee that the statement was not correct. The Public Accounts Committee, having regard to these facts, commented on a statement made by Mr. J. J. Walsh, in the Dail recently that "our accounts have been duly audited by the Comptroller and Auditor-General, and that point should be understood." The Committee pointed out that the official named had neither audited the accounts in question nor certified them in any way.

Mr. Walsh, speaking on the report, said that the grant of £6,500, which was the only grant yet received by the Tailteann Games Council, had been audited, as to part, in December, 1922, and the further expenditure up to May, 1923, had been audited, and a further audit was held last month. Copies of the first two audits were duly transmitted to the Comptroller and Auditor-General. It appeared now that that gentleman was not entitled to audit a grant-in-aid. He had come to the conclusion that these accounts were duly audited.

Mr. Johnson said that it should be understood that the audit spoken of by Mr. Walsh was an audit by the Association's auditors, and no attempt at an audit had been made by the Attorney-General. It was not suggested by the Committee that he should audit those accounts.

BILLS ADVANCED.

The Dublin Police Bill was passed through the final stage.

The House took up the consideration of the Unemployment Insurance Bill in Committee.

Mr. Johnson put forward an amendment to cover cases of men who had served in the Army, and the Minister for Industry and Commerce replying that the amendment would not be as advantageous to the great majority of the men as the provisions in the bill, it was negatived.

Other amendments having been disposed of, the Committee stage was concluded.

On the resumption of the Committee stage of the Finance Bill,

Mr. Davin moved an amendment to change the incidence of the entertainments tax, reducing the amount of tax payable on the lower charges for admission to entertainment.

Mr. Blythe said that he did not believe that the higher amount of the tax at present deterred many people from going to entertainments, and if he knew anything of the picture-house owners from various interviews with them there would not be any rush to give the benefit to the public.

The amendment was withdrawn.

Other amendments having been agreed to as tabled, the Committee stage was concluded.

The bill to amend the Dail Eireann Courts (Winding-Up) Act was passed through its remaining stages, and committed to the Senate.

The National Health Insurance Bill passed the Report stage.

The Committee stage of the Agricultural Produce (Eggs) Bill was resumed, and a number of Government amendments were approved.

Mr. Baxter moved as an amendment that the regulations under Section 15 (providing for working) made by the Minister shall be laid before the Oireachtas.

The Minister for Agriculture said that he would draft an amendment to provide that the regulations made under all sections of the bill shall be laid before the Oireachtas.

The Report stage was fixed for Friday next.

THRIFTY BELFAST WORKERS.

£3,000,000 SAVINGS INVESTED.

A BANK'S RECORD.

The Belfast Savings Bank, which is largely supported by the working classes in the city, recently attained the £3,000,000 mark for its total funds. This event was celebrated yesterday by a luncheon in Belfast, when the Committee and Trustees of the Bank, representatives of public bodies in the city, heads of the Belfast Joint Stock Banks, and leading citizens were the guests of Sir Robert Baird, K.B.E., the Chairman of the Committee of Management.

In proposing the toast of "The Belfast Savings Bank and the three million mark," Sir Robert Baird gave an interesting account of the history of the bank, which was opened in January, 1816, to receive deposits of from 10d. to £5. In the first two hours and a half £74 6s. 8d. was deposited. (Laughter.) The bank progressed steadily, and in 1842 there were 5,000 depositors, and the funds were £105,613. The first million mark was not reached until 1913, the second million in 1920, and now they were celebrating the third million mark. (Applause.) The record of progress meant that for more than 100 years they had assisted the great industrial class, which had done so much to build up the prosperity of the city, to provide for the rainy day.

The Lord Mayor (Sir William Turner) paid a tribute to the management of the bank, and said that a prosperous future lay before a community whose industrial classes not only maintained the high level of their deposits, but at a time of trade depression and unemployment persevered in their efforts for the provision of a comfortable future.

The Right Hon. H. M. Pollock, Northern Minister of Finance, pointed out that, while it required almost 100 years of effort before the first million was reached, in seven more years the second million was passed, while the third million mark had been piled up in the four years now ended. It was not difficult to account for the rapid increase in the second million during the war period, when wages were high, but it was not so easy to account for the attainment of the third million in the last four years, when unemployment figures in Ulster were as high as 100,000, and to-day exceeded 40,000. He joined in congratulating all who were associated with the bank.

Mr. Charles Eason, M.A., J.P., Chairman of the Dublin Savings Bank, said that he could assure the managers and trustees of the Belfast Savings Bank that they in Dublin had watched with great interest the progress of the bank, and congratulated all heartily upon their great success. They felt naturally that it was another proof of the energy, efficiency, honesty, and hard working character of the people of the North of Ireland, and they were sure that under such conditions the future of the bank would be as prosperous as it had been in the past. He suggested to the Northern Chancellor of the Exchequer, as, no doubt, he had some influence in the matter, that the limit of thrift which was imposed upon old age pensions should be extended, as he considered that the present limitation was a deterrent to thrift. If the limit was extended to another £20 or £30 it would encourage further thrift, and permit the full old age pensions to be paid. He also suggested, if they had not already a pension scheme for the staff, that such a scheme should be devised, or, as an alternative, that the bank should undertake the payment of a portion of the premiums for ordinary insurance, and enable them to make adequate provision for the future.

JURY DISAGREE IN LUNACY CASE.

JUDGE ON BELFAST MAN'S GENIUS.

The jury disagreed in the Northern High Court to-day in the inquiry before Mr. Justice Brown into the mental state of Mr. John Connell, a retired draughtsman, of "Sonoma," Belmont road, Belfast.

It was alleged on the one side that Mr. Connell was of unsound mind and incapable of managing his own affairs, and on the other side it was claimed that he was quite competent to take care of himself and his property.

Mr. William Beattie, K.C., addressing the jury on behalf of Mr. Connell, said that in this inquiry the onus of proof rested on those who alleged that he was insane. They could not put a man up and say: "Prove your sanity." Let them judge the man not on the testimony of those who magnified the most trivial of incidents, but on their own observation and on the assurances of those close friends who came into contact with him daily, who knew him intimately, who lunched with him, who conversed with him, and who were satisfied that he was perfectly sane.

Mr. Murphy, addressing the jury in support of the petition, laid stress on the fact that it was not instigated by family feeling or spite. It was brought under an order of the Lord Chief Justice, and if the jury found that Mr. Connell was insane he would not be condemned to rot in an asylum, as had been suggested; he would become a ward of the Lord Chief Justice, who would be always ready to hear any representations on his behalf, and who would deal with his property, his place of residence, and his future life.

He submitted that, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Connell had improved under institutional control, the medical history proved he was a chronic maniac, and should be so regarded.

The Judge said that it was a very sad case, one of the saddest they could be engaged in. Mr. Connell was a man of the brightest intellect, of very keen intelligence, an outstanding figure in the shipbuilding world, a genius, in fact.

After reviewing the evidence, his lordship concluded by asking the jury to take everything they had seen and heard into consideration. If from the evidence that had been given on Mr. Connell's behalf, and their own impressions of his condition from their interview, they considered he was of sound mind, they should give effect to that view. If, on the other hand, they considered that the expert evidence in support of the petition was trustworthy, they should find accordingly.

After an absence of an hour and ten minutes the jury returned into Court and told the judge that there was no chance of their agreeing.

COLLEGE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

INTER-DEBATE.

"That Nationalism, rather than Internationalism, is the Hope of the Future," was the subject of an inter-debate last evening in the Examination Hall of Trinity College, Dublin, between members of the College Historical Society and representatives of the Uion Societies of Cambridge and Edinburgh, and the Edinburgh Speculative Society.

Lord Glenavy, Vice-Chancellor of the University and Vice-President of the College Historical Society, occupied the chair. Before calling upon the Auditor (Mr. P. Bourke) of the College Historical Society to open the debate, in the affirmative, he extended, on behalf of the College Historical Society, a very hearty welcome to their guests, and a very warm and fraternal greeting in recognition of the courteous hospitality that each of the Unions had recently extended to the College Historical Society.

Mr. Bourke associated himself with the Chairman's welcome to the visitors, saying that the bonds that bound these societies to the College Historical Society were long and honourable, and he hoped that they would continue to be so in the future. Dealing with the subject of the debate, he said that internationalism was not a new thing, but an old thing, and the reason why the Holy Roman Empire fell seemed to be a good argument against it. The differences between the people were stronger than the ties that bound them. Nationality consisted in culture, and tradition and looking out on life with a certain unity. Plato said that the highest quality in a people was to have a unity of interest. What was internationalism in the present day? There was the League of Nations, a pale ghost of a covenant—the finest piece of fiction that he knew of. Internationalism was the attuning of the universal air to the lowest common note, and was likely to be degrading and debasing, rather than ennobling.

Mr. J. L. Gray, of the Edinburgh University Union, who followed in the negative, first referred to the affinities between Dublin and Edinburgh, both of which, in the eighteenth century, were centres of literary and social life. Only one, however, had retained that centre, and enhanced its literary reputation, and that was Dublin. Perhaps, he suggested, before speaking in the negative, that was because in Dublin there was a national movement. There was little hope of any such movement in Scotland. The relationship between war and nationalism, he said, was very close, and the one could hardly exist without the other. It seemed to him that it was almost a self-evident proposition that internationalism was the hope of the future. Nationality must always remain an important social, spiritual factor. Nationalism, in its pure and simple assertion of national unity, became a power which grew until it became imperialism, and unfortunately the tendency led towards aggressiveness.

Mr. F. Johnston, of the Edinburgh Speculative Society, speaking in the affirmative, said that nations were facts and were the natural outcome of close development in the State. He approved of the Irish Free State, and hoped that Ireland might find her true place in the society of nations which formed the British nation. Nationalism was not the unworthy thing that some people would have them imagine. He thouiht it was a mistake to blame nationalism for war. War was the result of the pugnacious instinct of man.

Mr. F. D. McCarthy Morrogh followed in the negative. Nationalism, he said, had been one of the most potent causes of the late war. They saw from history that everywhere that there was nationalism war had followed, for nationalism was incapable of expressing itself in its external nature except in brute force; hence the growth of their army and the advent of war. Nationalism stood, not for liberty, but for licence.

Mr. B. W. Lloyd, of the Cambridge University Union, and Mr. W. D. L. Greer, of the Historical Society, spoke for the affirmative and negative, respectively.

The motion, having been put, was declared by the Chairman to be lost.

The Chairman said that, whatever views might be taken relatively on the question of nationalism and internationalism, he hoped that these inter-debates would become a fixture.

YESTERDAY'S CASES IN THE COURTS.

TEACHER AND CURATE.

ACTION FOR ASSAULT.

Before Mr. Justice Sullivan and a city special jury, the case of Ryan v. Hayes came on for hearing. It was an action in which a national school teacher claimed £500 damages against a Catholic curate for alleged assault. The plaintiff was Jeremiah J. Ryan, principal teacher of Knockainey (Co. Limerick) National School, and the defendant was the Rev. Lawrence Hayes, C.C. The Rev. Father Connery, P.P., is manager of the school.

The plaintiff, in his statement of claim, stated that on May 28th, 1922, the Most Rev. Dr. Harty, Archbishop of Cashel, was solding a Visitation at Knockainey Church for the purpose of bestowing the Sacrament of Confirmation upon (amongst others) the school children attending the national schools at Knockainey. The plaintiff was performing his duty in arrangement of the children and adults to be presented to the Archbishop, as directed by Father Connery, when the defendant, in the presence of the school children and parents and a large congregation, rushed at the plaintiff and violently assaulted him. The defendant, it was alleged, gripped the plaintiff by the neck and rushed him five or six paces as if to throw him out of the church.

The defence was a denial of the alleged assault and a plea that what happened was in reasonable self-defence.

Mr. E. McElligott, K.C., Mr. Michael Comyn, K.C., and Mr. James Comyn (instructed by Mr. Roger Fox) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Carrigan, K.C., and Mr. Sainsbury (instructed by Mr. William Frewen) for the defendant.

Mr. McElligott, in the course of his adddess to the jury, said that without a word of warning the rev. defendant, with extraordinary violence, caught the plaintiff and rushed him practically the whole way down the floor, saying in effect, "I will fire you out of the church." This was in presence of His Grace, the children and parents. The further progress of the action of this most domineering clergyman was barred by the crowd of parishioners, who cried out. Mr. Ryan, suffering from this great indignity, proceeded to where His Grace the Archbishop was seated outside the Sanctuary and told His Grace of the ignominious and cruel attack that had been made upon him. It must have been a tremendous shock to the Archbishop, who said, "Oh, my; oh, my," and asked the reverend gentleman to come inside the rails. There was absolutely no ground for the suggestion that what the defendant did was in reasonable self-defence. Up to the time of the issue of the writ the reverend defendant did not announce the opening of this particular school, which clearly indicated the existence of a malicious feeling.

Jeremiah J. Ryan, the plaintiff, examined by Mr. Comyn, K.C., gave evidence bearing out the statement of counsel. He described the arrangements made for the preparation of the children in the church for presentation to the Archbishop. Father Hayes asked a boy named O'Dwyer had he been examined, and he said "No." The plaintiff said to Father Hayes that the boy was an adult and was to be examined after the children. Father Hayes beckoned to the boy, and the plaintiff said: "This is John O'Dwyer, who, with Father Connery's instructions, was to be examined with the 'prayers' section," and told the boy to sit down. I was, said the plaintiff, in the act of calling four more children when Father Hayes gripped me by the back of the neck, forcing his thumb behind my ear, and rushed me down away from the children, and was only stopped by the bulk of the congregation, having been shoved along some eight yards.

Did Father Hayes say anything?—Yes; he said: "I will kick you or throw you out of the church." I then told the Archbishop what had happened, and His Grace called Father Hayes inside the altar rails.

Cross-examined by Mr. Carrigan, K.C.—The defendant omitted in 1920 to make the usual notice of the opening of the schools, but the witness did not suffer pecuniarily from the fact.

Did you try to separate young O'Dwyer from Father Hayes?—No.

According to you Father Hayes rushed you at a "trot" down the church?—Yes.

Within a short distance from where the Archbishop was seated?—Yes.

The Rev. Patrick Connery, P.P., in reply to Mr. McElligott, K.C., said that he remembered the Confirmation of May, 1922, when the pupils were to be presented for Confirmation. There were two classes—the "prayers" class and the school children's. Mr. Ryan, the plaintiff, was present. The witness had examined, passed and arranged them for the presentation in a certain order. All children not regularly school-going were in the second class. The boy O'Dwyer was in the prayers class. There were about seventy children presented. The witness had said Mass, and on leaving the sacristy afterwards he found general confusion of a pronounced kind. Mr. Ryan made a complaint to him, which he thought could have been heard by everyone who was present. Father Hayes made no answer to any complaint.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C.—Do you see any harm that could happen if this boy, O'Dwyer, and another, taken out of their place and answering the examination when presented, were confirmed?—No, but it is a matter of discipline.

Mrs. Annie Ryan, mother of the plaintiff, was examined. She saw Father Hayes shoving her son down the gangway.

Mr. O'Callaghan, national teacher, said that he was present at the Confirmation and saw the plaintiff pushed down the church by the defendant.

Mrs. Margaret Brown, Mrs. Leahy and other witnesses having been examined,

The further hearing of the case was adjourned until this morning.

DIGGING FOR COAL.

TIPPERARY COMPENSATION CASE.

In the Supreme Court, before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice O'Connor and Mr. Justice FitzGibbon, an appeal was heard in the Workmen's Compensation case of "Preston, applicant; Delaney, respondent," which was brought from an order made by the Acting County Court Judge of Tipperary awarding the applicant Patrick Preston, small farmer, of Newpark, The Commons, Thurles, £1 per week, with the usual 25 per cent., under the Workmen's Compensation (Amendment) Act, as compensation for injuries sustained in the course of employment on the lands of the respondent, Denis Delaney, also a small farmer, of Black Commons, Thurles, while engaged in raising coal, or "culm," on the 14th of September, 1922.

It was admitted that the applicant had sustained serious injuries to one of his legs through a "landslide" when he was working in the coal mine or pit; and the Acting County Court Judge found as a fact that the accident occurred out of, and in the course of, his employment under a contract of service with the respondent, and that he was totally incapacitated. The compensation amounted to 54s. a week.

Mr. Swayne, K.C., and Mr. Connolly (instructed by Mr. F. J. O'Connor) appeared for the appellant and respondent; and Mr. W. J. Shannon (instructed by Messrs. Laurence J. Ryan) for the applicant.

In support of the appeal it was stated that this was really not a workmen's compensation case at all; that there was no contract of service; that there was a partnership arrangement between the applicant and a man named Pollard, and that the applicant was a sort of hawker of the coal or "culm," the respondent paying him 6s. or 7s. a week for raising coal or "culm," used for his own purposes.

The Court dismissed the appeal, with costs, being of opinion that the acting County Court Judge had evidence of fact before him to justify him in arriving at his finding.

Mr. Justice FitzGibbon, while concurring with the other members of the Court, intimated that he might not have arrived at the same finding on the evidence before the County Court Judge.

DUBLIN PROBATE SUIT.

AMERICAN BISHOP'S WILL.

Before Mr. Justice Johnston, the probate suit of O'Connor v. O'Reilly and another was heard. The plaintiff, Louis O'Connor, of 22 Hollybrook road, Clontarf, claimed to be executor of the last will, dated 15th December, 1923, of Peter J. O'Reilly, late of 21 Hollybrook road, Clontarf, Dublin, retired Roman Catholic Bishop of Peoria, Illinois, United States of America, deceased, who died on the 16th December, 1923, and to have the will established. The defendants, Nellie O'Reilly and Margaret Mary O'Reilly, of 109 Glenack avenue, Peoria, Illinois, spinsters, had entered caveats against the will on the usual statutory grounds, and on the claim that the deceased made his true last will on the 12th July, 1923, and therein named the defendants to be his residuary legatees.

Mr. W. A. Redmond, with whom was Mr. Serjeant Hanna, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Roger Greene and Sons), appeared for the plaintiff, and said that Margaret Mary O'Reilly had entered an appearance and defence, but the defendant, Nellie O'Reilly, had done neither, and, therefore, the action resolved itself into one between the plaintiff and Margaret Mary O'Reilly.

Mr. E. Vaughan Wilson (instructed by Messrs. Fottrell and Sons), who appeared for the defendants, said that there would be no contest in the case. Margaret Mary O'Reilly put in a defence that the will was not properly executed. The two other pleas would not be contested.

Mr. Thomas J. Green, solicitor, gave evidence of having made the will of the deceased bishop on the 15th December last in the Nursing Home in Eccles street. He said that the bishop told him that he had already made a will and wanted to change it. He told him that he had two bonds amounting to about $9,000, £1,000 on deposit receipt in the Provincial Bank of Ireland, and about £400 on current account. He said that he had given his house in Hollybrook road to his sister, Nellie, by deed. He wanted to give £300 to his brother, Eugene, and to leave £200 for Masses for the repose of his soul. He said that his brother, Terence, was very well off, and he would leave him £25. Father Dempsey, parish priest of Clontarf, and Father Meehan, the curate, had been very good and kind to him, and he would leave them £20 each for themselves. He would leave £25 to his housekeeper, Kate Milligan, and everything else to his sister, Nellie. He said that he wished Mr. Louis O'Connor, of Hollybrook road, to be his executor.

Mr. Justice Johnston found in favour of the will, and declared the plaintiff entitled to his costs as executor, and the defendant, Margaret Mary O'Reilly, entitled to her costs, on the consent of the residuary legatee, Nellie O'Reilly.

THE WRECK OF THE GIPSY.

A WICKLOW CUSTOM.

In the Dail Eireann Courts (Winding-Up) Commission yesterday, the case of Conway and others against Keely was listed, on an appeal by the defendant against registration of a decree. The plaintiffs were Mark Conway, Richard Wall, John Wall and Thomas Gregory, junior, of Wicklow, mariners, and the defendant was James Keely, of The Hut, Rocky road, Wicklow, building contractor, against whom a decree for £25 was obtained, and in default the defendant was to go to prison for six weeks. The action had reference to the sale of the wreck of the Gipsy in Wicklow Harbour by the plaintiffs to the defendant.

Mr. Hector Hughes (instructed by Messrs. Goff and Callery), for the defendant, said that in August, 1921, there was a wreck in Wicklow Harbour, and his client ascertained that the plaintiff, Conway was the owner of it. Keely offered to buy it for £25, and a few hours later discovered that it was the custom in Wicklow that wrecks should not be sold, but left there and divided up for firewood amongst the poor people. After the gear had been taken off Keely, on learning of this custom, withdrew his offer, which was never accepted, and no contract had been entered into. Conway then brought an action for damages against Keely, who appeared at the East Wicklow District Court, and a decree for £7 was awarded. Conway appealed against that decree, and the case was heard before Mr. Justice Meredith. The defendant had no notice of the appeal, and the decree was increased to £25. The defendant got no notice of the decree being granted, and Conway applied for an order committing the defendant to prison in default of the payment of the amount of the decree.

Mr. Cunniam (instructed by Mr. J. H. McCarroll), for the plaintiff, said that the defendant was aware of the order which was made by a District Court at Bray.

Mr. Hughes said that his contention was that at the present time it had no decree behind it to support the order. If the plaintiffs acted regularly they should have applied to register the decree.

The Court dismissed the appeal, with costs, and granted the defendant an extension of the time to enable him to appeal against the decree. The re-hearing was fixed for Monday next.

"FELIX FAIR."

The "Felix Fair," which opens to-day in Lord Iveagh's ground, Dublin, has been organised to re-open and maintain the children's ward of Baggot Street Hospital, which has been closed since 1918 through lack of funds. In connection with the fair a "Felix" Dog Show will take place on the 21st of June, by permission of the Irish Kennel Club. A representative committee of ladies and gentlemen, with Captain G. R. Shine as Secretary, has completed the arrangements for a variety of attractions, and has spared no effort to make the Fête successful.

Some idea of the valuable services rendered by the children's ward attached to the hospital may be gained from the fact that in 1918 152 children received medical and surgical aid. The hospital itself treated 7,874 patients. Its usefulness will be increased by the re-opening of the children's ward. A sum of £5,000 is required. It is hoped that the public will make a generous response to the hospital's appeal.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

HUNT CUP SURPRISE.

A 50 TO 1 WINNER.

FRENCH CHANCES IN THE GOLD CUP.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Wednesday Night.

Should a bookmaker's wife's horse be allowed to beat the King's horse at Ascot? The answer to this conundrum offered by every one who was on the course this afternoon would be "Certainly not—when the winner is a 50 to 1 chance." Fifty to one was the starting price of Mrs. R. R. Jeffrey's Dinkie, who beat His Majesty's Weathervane in the race for the Royal Hunt Cup this afternoon. It was an absolutely stupefying result, for the winner, who had finished last of ten runners to Helinster, Brig o' Doon, and Torlonia at Kempton Park last Saturday week, was not backed for a copper by his owner or her husband, or anybody else.

Indeed, 100 to 1 could as easily have been had about him as 50 to 1, and yet he came in the last quarter of a mile to make up three or four lengths and gain a clever victory over Weathervane by a neck. It was a remarkably good betting race, in which Twelve Pointer was a steady favourite. The Duke of Westminster's colt was drawn No. 2, but edged away towards the centre of the course, and though he was very well placed at the distance, he began to hang, and finished anything but generously, being beaten a length and a half for second place.

The victory in the Bessboro' Stakes of Mr. C. F. Kenyon's Haine greatly strengthened the confidence of the stable in Minority, and he came steadily down to 8 to 1, starting joint second favourite with Torlonia. The French four-year-old, Niceas, and Mink were the next best backed. Irish Hope went no more strongly in the market than he did in the race.

After Frater had made the running for half the distance, Mink took it up from Twelve Pointer and Weathervane. A quarter of a mile from home Weathervane joined Mink, who swerved a little later, a circumstance which may easily have cost her the race. This left Weathervane with a lear lead, but the apprentice, Alford, on Dinkie, riding very resolutely, gained on him steadily, until a hundred yards from home he was practically level, and then went on to beat him fairly and squarely. Mink, after her swerve, came again to finish fourth. Irish Hope was prominent for half the distance, but lost his place, and then came on to finish sixth. Torlonia was never in the picture at all, nor was Niceas.

DINKIE'S SURPRISE VICTORY.

On some of his form last year, notably in that race at Windsor in which he dead-heated with Dumas at level weights, Dinkie had a fair chance, but he was not thought to have done at all well this season, and his victory astonished his connections as much as it did the public. He is a four-year-old colt, trained by Walter Earl, and bred by W. Higgs, the ex-jockey, who sold him as a yearling for 560 guineas. It is a very long time since the Ring has had such a complete skinner over the winner of a big handicap as they have had in this case, for no money at all can be traced for Dinkie.

The Ring, indeed, have been having the time of their lives during the last two days; for of the seven winners to-day only one, Poor Scats, who ran away with the Chesham Stakes from a very moderate field of four runners, was favourite, and his price was 13 to 8 on.

The other tragedy of the day was the lamentable failure of Mumtaz Mahal in the Coronation Stakes. She started favourite at 15 to 8, and she finished almost last in a field of seven runners. She looked lighter than when she ran in the One Thousand, and she was rather fretful and nervous as she left the paddock. Hulme would appear to have had different riding instructions to-day; for, instead of allowing her to stride out in her old way, and be half a dozen lengths ahead at the end of a furlong, he waited with her in company with Straitlace. After they had turned into the straight, he moved her up, and she had her head in front for a moment or two; but that was an expiring effort, and thereafter she faded away and finished almost at a walk.

MUMTAZ MAHAL'S POOR PERFORMANCE.

There was so little life in her performance that, even had she been kept for her other engagement, the Fernhill Stakes, run over five furlongs, she might conceivably have been beaten in that also. The race was then won in really brilliant style by that splendid filly, Straitlace, who gave a stone and an easy three lengths beating to Neigeuse, the National Stud filly, White Bread being a length behind the second. It was a splendid performance on the part of Straitlace, and this daughter of Stolen Kiss is one of the best and most honest fillies we have seen for many a day.

That remarkable cheap colt from the Dublin Horse Show sales, Purple Shade, made his first appearance of the season in the Fernhill Stakes, and a very brilliant appearance it was too. He was not so good a favourite as Mr. Cottrill's two-year-old Sunart, but he very soon had this filly cold, and he went on to win far more easily than the three-quarters of a length verdict suggested. It was another two-year-old, Swanage, who was nearest to him at the finish. Mr. Kenyon and his trainer, Captain Davis, had another success when Haine won the Bessborough Stakes. He may be regarded as a very lucky winner, for Donoghue on Norseman had the race well won when Smirke, on Haine, seizing an opening on the rails, got through to defeat Mr. White's horse by a short head.

Hurstwood, who had run third in the Derby, failed badly in the Ascot Derby, for which he started favourite. He was beaten a quarter of a mile from home, and then Polyphontes came on to win from Zodiac by three lengths. The fourth in the Derby, Parmenio, who had been unplaced yesterday, did much better than Hurstwood, for he won a good race for the Waterford Stakes from Arcade, Woodend, who started favourite, being a notable failure.

GOLD CUP PROSPECTS.

The great question to-day is: shall we be able to keep the Gold Cup in this country, or lose it to France for the first time in 21 years? The French people are making a determined assault on the race with no fewer than five candidates—Filibert de Savoie, Massine, Le Capucin, Rose Prince and Cerfeuil, though the last-named is only being started to make the running for Massine. It is a thousand pities that Tranquil went wrong and could not be started, for I am sure she would have run a great race. To oppose the French horses we have Papyrus, Inkerman and Plack. These are the only three of the home-trained candidates to whom I give any chance. As Filibert de Savoie has beaten all the other French candidates at home and over the distance of this race he must be accepted as easily the best of them. The very highest opinion is entertained of this colt, both by his connections and by those who have seen him run in France. He has the best credentials, and is undoubtedly a great stayer.

Papyrus, for all we know, may also be a great stayer, but it has not been proved on a racecourse, nor even at home, for he has never been over the distance in a strong gallop. I believe that his trainer has no doubt about his stamina, and that he is well expected to win. All the same, I prefer the chance of Inkerman. His victory over Tranquil at a mile and three-quarters last October at Newmarket was a very meritorious one. This is undoubtedly a good colt, but he is only being started as an afterthought, for Mr. Reid Walker intended until last week-end to keep him for this race next year. It may be, therefore, that he has not had the exact sort of preparation that Alec Taylor likes to give a Gold Cup candidate.

It is against all the precedents for a three-year-old filly to win this race, and, therefore, good as Plack is, one cannot view her chance in a favourable light. Another three-year-old in Battleship is a little fancied. I am afraid that this year the race is destined to go to France, and the one most likely to take the trophy across the Channel is Filibert de Savoie.

PHAROS runs for the Rous Memorial Stakes, and should just be able to give 7lbs. to My Lord. In the Churchill Stakes PARTH will make his first essay over two miles in this country. The opposition may not be strong, and he should win. In the Ribblesdale Stakes, run over a mile, Golden Boss may be started. He has never been over the distance in this country, and I doubt whether he can give 9lbs. to DIOPHON, who may win. BLACK FRIAR is a likely winner of the New Stakes.

KELLS.

OUTSIDERS WIN.

DRUMLASSIE'S THIRD SCORE.

The second meeting of the season at Kells, yesterday, would probably have been one of the most successful of the many fixtures held on the famous old course were it not for the fact that owing to the dislocation of traffic on the branch line betwen Drogheda and Kells many people were prevented from getting to the venue, while a few horses intended to run were also held up. Passengers from Dublin by the Great Northern Line were facilitated by the Midland Great Western Company running a special train at very short notice, thanks to which all the horses from the Dublin direction were also able to reach the scene of action. As it was there was a very good attendance, excellent racing, and the fact that the first race had to be put back an hour caused little inconvenience.

Though there were only four runners for the County Plate, backers made a bad sizing-up of the situation when they gave the preference to Mr. Porta and Glowanna, for neither of these ever looked like landing the spoils, the issue being left to the two outsiders, Pullman and Too Ton. It was an interesting set-to from the last hurdle, but Pullman eventually won in comfortable style, and afterwards survived an objection for bumping and boring. In a three-horse race for the Summer Plate May Eve outstayed Knight Templar, and won in very easy style, and Glass Island had a similarly easy task to win the Headfort Cup, in which the opposition to her was very moderate. A field of eleven runners for the June Plate brought an improvement in the sport, and this was won by Drumlassie, a daughter of Charles O'Malley, who thus registered her third win off the reel. She is now trained by Mr. H. M. Hartigan, whose stable was otherwise out of luck, for previous to this Glowanna and Knight Templar had disappointed. Four of the seven runners for the Patrons' Steeplechase were well supported; yet the winner did not come from amongst the number. Of the fancied lot Wise Girsha gave the best account of herself, but failed to cope with Grecian Wave in the run-in from the last fence, the latter, one of the outsiders of the party, scoring cleverly. Keep Time refused the first fence, and Southern Gleam, who was never in the reckoning, finished last. Only V.V. and Ellen's Dote turned out for the Loyd Plate, and the later, after indulging V.V. with the lead for half-way, came away from this point to score in a canter. Details:—

An excellent start, from which Algerien came from Pinnace, Argo, Haine and Ardavon. Trajanus took up the running after going half a mile, with Argo and Pinnace next. Ceinturon was first into the straight, but Norseman took the lead a quarter of a mile from home, to be caught on the post by Haine, who won by a short head; two lengths between second and third. TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

THE GOLD CUP.

The climax to a memorable gathering will be reached to-day, when the contest for the always-coveted Gold Cup is likely to prove a real thriller. The following is a list of the

PROBABLE STARTERS AND JOCKEYS.

*POISONED ARROW (Maj. Cayzer), 5, 9-4 ....J. Childs
ROSE PRINCE (Mr. Macomber), 5, 9-4 ....G. Archibald
LE CAPUCIN (M. J. Desgorces), 4, 9-0 ....Bartholomew
PAPYRUS (Mr. J. Hornung), 4, 9-0....H. Jelliss
FILIBERT DE SAVOIE (M. C. Ranucci), 4, 9-0 ....J. Jennings
MASSINE (M. H. Ternynck), 4, 9-0.....(——)
INKERMAN (Mr. R. Walker), 4, 9-0...F. Bullock
BATTLESHIP (Mr. S. Joel), 3, 7-7 ....W. McLachlan, jun.
PLACK (Lord Rosebery), 3, 7-4....C. Smirke

*Doubtful starter.

"On paper" the Continental opposition is exceedingly strong, whilst on the other hand the home defending force has been very seriously weakened by the unfortunate mishap to Tranquil, who, I am satisfied, would have proved our strongest card, as the mare was never so well in her life as at the moment she left her stable last Friday for exercise. Another unfortunate circumstance has arisen in Teresina being caught momentarily off colour just now, but fortunately for us Papyrus is reported to be at the top of his form. Last year's Derby winner will be ably assisted to-day in the effort to beat the invading troop by Inkerman, whose Chester victory was most impressive. Plack is, I understand, well expected by her trainer, who declines to accept her defeat by Straitlace as being a decisive one, and expects that, if the weather and other circumstances are favourable to the filly, she will register a good performance. Poisoned Arrow can have little chance, even if he is started, against the invaders. Now as to the Continental opposition, there cannot be a question but that it is centred in Filibert de Savoie, whose credentials we are bound to accept as being one of the best stayers sent here for a long period; and, much as I am hopeful that Papyrus and Inkerman will prove efficient for the job, I am bound to believe that they are faced by a stiff proposition. However, so far the Continental runners here this week have failed. Selections are as follow:—

Rous Memorial Stakes—Tom Pinch.
Gold Cup—Papyrus.
Granville Stakes—Diophon; if absent, Perhaps So.
Churchill Stakes—Parth; if absent, Persse's selected.
New Stakes—Black Friar.
All-Aged Stakes—Drake.
Ribblesdale Stakes—Diophon.

NAAS.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

Everything points to a very successful opening of the new course at Naas, and, if the attractive character of the programme arranged for the inaugural meeting is to be taken as a criterion, the project will take rank with the best of the meetings outside the metropolis. The course itself is admirably laid and yields splendid galloping, whilst the general appointments will be found satisfactory. Naas is peculiarly happy in its situation, both from the point of view of the general public, who are splendidly catered for in the way of train facilities, and also because of its being within such easy reach of the Curragh, which should ensure the support of owners and trainers in the form of entries. Special trains leaves Kingsbridge to-day at 1.30, 1.45, and 2 o'clock, and return at 5.50, 6.0, and 6.10, the journey each way occupying half an hour, and racing is due to commence at 3 o'clock. A large number of horses are under orders to run, and the sport promises to be very interesting. Selections are appended:—

Directors' Plate—Major Ray.
Fishery Plate—Tomtoi or Flying Prince.
Naas Plate—Revelation.
Kingsfurze Plate—Flying Phœnix or May Bush.
Tipper Plate—Hidennis.

IRISH STOCK EXCHANGES.

DUBLIN.

BRITISH FUNDS HIGHER. "CASHEL" ORD. LOWER. GUINNESS, COATS, AND TOBACCOS HARDER. BURKES CLOSED GOOD. DUNLOPS DULL. PARENT TYRES SUPPORTED.

Business remains exceedingly quiet on 'Change, with limited price fluctuations and practically no feature of importance. Government National Loan was the turn easier, but British Funds advanced further in all cases. Banks were quietly firm. Nationals improved, but Bank stock eased a little. Guinness Ord. and Pref. were both in demand and closed higher. Marconi Pref. shares were in request, with improved prices current. Radio Common also rose. Home Railway Ord. were quiet. "Cashel" stock relapsed. Pre-Ord. issues were neglected. Dublin Tram Pref. were dull. Parent Tyre shares were in request, but Dunlop Rubber Ord. closed on offer. Alliance Gas were harder. Drapery shares were steady where dealing took place. Tobaccos were in firm request. Coats were the turn better. Burke issues were in comparatively moderate request, in spite of the exceedingly favourable report and balance sheet, but towards the close the demand became more general.

Government National 5 p.c. Sterling Loan eased 1/16 to 92 11/16.

British Funds advanced further. Consols rose 1/16 to 57 1/16, War Loan 5 p.c. 1/16 to 101⅝, after opening at 101 11/16; ditto 4 p.c. ⅞ to 101⅞, Funding Loan ⅛ to 89 11/16, Conversion 3½ p.c. ⅛ to 78¾, and Irish Land 2¾ p.c. 1/16 to 59.

In Banks, Nationals rose 1/16 to 19 11/16, but Bank of Ireland stock fell ¼ to 273½, while Hibernians repeated 7 1/16.

Dealing in Breweries was confined to Guinness shares. The Ord. rose 1/16 to 41 1/16, after opening at 41⅛, and the Pref. 1/16 to 12 1/16 for an odd lot.

Marconi Pref. rose 1s. 3d. to 29s. 3d., after opening at 28s. 9d., and Radio Common 1s. 1½d. to 18s. 1½d., while Canadian Marconis realised 4s. 3d.

As regards Home Rails, Great Southern and Western Ord. gave way ⅛ to 45¾, ½. Great Northern repeated 61¾ and London, Midland, and Scottish 98½.

In Trams, Dublin United Pref. fell 1/16 to 9 1/16.

Among Dunlop issues, Parent Tyre Ord. rose 1½d. to 18s., and the Deferred repeated 31s. 6d., after an odd lot was picked up at 31s. 6d. Dunlop Rubber Ord. fell 1½d. to 7s. 3d.

Alliance Gas shares rose 1/16 to 6 1/16.

In Drapery shares, Crowe, Wilson Pref. rose 3d. to 16s. 3d., while Webb and Co. repeated 5s. 6d.

Manufacturing shares were quiet. British-American Tobacco rose 6d. to 106s. 3d., and Imperials 4½d. to 73s., 73s. 4½d. Coats were 3d. better at 61s., for an exceptional lot. Helys Pref. rose 2d. to 18s.

As regard Trading, etc., Edward and John Burke shares opened firm, but quiet. The Ord. opened 1s. higher at 82s., fell to 81s. 6d., and at the later market rose to 83s. The Pref. repeated 79s., but the Debentures were keenly supported at 8 11/16, ⅝, 11/16, a rise of 1/16.

British Controlled Oilfields fell 6d. to 12s. 6d., and Venezuela Oils quoted 46s. 6d.

LONDON STOCKS FIRM.

FRENCH LOANS LOWER.

The Stock markets were in an extremely subdued mood yesterday; business was small, but the tone remained generally firm. French Loans had a further slight set-back. After a weak opening they rallied somewhat, but finished lower on the day. The close was idle. Among Gilt-edged securities, British Funds were generally firmer. Only one change was registered in War Loans, this being a rise of ⅛ in the 5 p.c. to 101½. Indias were strong, the 3 p.c. at 58 and the 3½ p.c. at 67 both rising ½, while the 7 p.c. were a point higher at 115.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES were irregular. French Fives finished ½ lower on the day at 23½, while the Fours were held at 18 ex div. Italian Rentes were a point down at 22, while Uruguay 3½ p.c. fell ½ to 58. Chinese were a bright spot; the 4½ p.c. (1898) at 79½ and the 5½ p.c. (1912) at 70 both finished a point to the good. The 5 p.c. (1896) were ⅛ up at 94 3/16. Argentine Fives of 1909 gained a point, closing at 94.

HOME RAILS were dull and uninteresting, and prices as a rule were unchanged. Southern 5 p.c. (1924), however, gained a point to 99½.

COLONIAL AND FOREIGN RAILS were slightly weaker. Business was small, and but few changes were recorded. Entre Rios fell ½ to 19½, as did United of Havana to 86, while San Paulo finished at 157, a fall of 2½ on the day.

OIL SHARES EASIER.

BUSINESS VERY SMALL.

There was little of interest in dealings in the Oil Share market yesterday, the volume of business being small, with transactions once more mainly professional in character. Lack of public interest was responsible for the development of a slightly steadier tendency in most of the leading issues. Among international counters, Royal Dutch were again on the dull side, a moderate amount of liquidation being in progress. Shells were held in check by the fact that the "deceased account," which has been overhanging the market, has not yet been wholly liquidated, the shares closing without alteration. Mexican Eagles became heavy on the news that wells in the Cacalilao district of the Panuco Field, where the Mexican Eagle Company is engaged in drilling operations, have suffered from the intrusion of salt water. While the Ord. and 8 p.c. Shares weakened, the 7 p.c. Pref. Shares registered an improvement. Anglo-Persians maintained a steady tone, but Burmahs left off easier. V.O.C. Holdings, although less active than on the preceding day, nevertheless commanded a fair amount of attention. British Controlled issues had a slightly easier tendency. Except in the case of Apex, Trinidad issues failed to maintain the firmer tendency of the previous day, shrinkages being recorded in Leaseholds and Centrals. A fair amount of attention continued to be devoted to Phœnix, which were a steady market throughout the day. In other directions the Eagle Oil Transports issues responded to a little support, but Attock Oils and Anglo-Americans closed easier. Closing prices:—

LONDON MINING MARKET DULL.

LARGE DEALINGS IN EAST RANDS.

Steadiness characterised most departments of the "House" yesterday, but business was not particularly brisk, the attractions of Ascot no doubt tending to restrict operations. In the Mining market dealers were early astir, very keen interest being evinced in the result of the South African elections. During the morning it appeared highly probable that the South African Party had been defeated, and that the Pact were in for a term of office. Results dribbled through slowly, and, as was only natural, the market was very undecided, so much so that in many cases dealers were chary of making prices. There was no where any great excitement, and it would seem that the result of the elections had been pretty well discounted. Even the receipt of lower prices from Johannesburg, where the market was described as very idle, failed to create any pronounced uneasiness. There were again very excited dealings in East Rands. Under the lead of Central Mining the bigger counters mostly sought lower levels. In the Rhodesian department Sherwood Starr were in good demand, but Chartered were unaltered. Cam and Motor were easier, as were also Tanks Zams and one or two others. De Beers Jagersfontein were allowed to slip back, but inquiries for Concolidated Diamonds were received from the Cape and the price improved. The price of Tin declined £2 15s. to £223 7s. 6d. per ton, and the market became listless. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

London Stock markets generally were more inactive yesterday, business in most sections being very restricted in volume. Gilt-edged Securities continued to show a bright tendency. Home Funds opened firmer, and there was a little more going in this department. While Home Rails were much steadier than they had been on Tuesday, very few changes occurred in values. Exchanges proved less of an influence to the foreign market. Mexicans were marked down on some stock being forced on to an unwilling market. Prices, however, are purely nominal. Argentine Rails failed to respond to the increased traffics reported. Havanas are still suffering from the effects of the strike. On the other hand, strength was displayed by "Leos." Antofagastas were not quite so good in spite of the year's favourable results, as exemplified at the meeting of the company.

An extraordinary meeting of the National Bank of New Zealand will be held at 17 Moorgate on Wednesday, 2nd July, to pass a resolution increasing the capital from £4,500,000 to £6,000,000 by the creation of 200,000 shares of £7 10/- each. The directors state that the increase is necessary to meet the growing requirements of the Dominion. In May last 100,000 new £7 10/- shares were offered to holders at £2 premium.

The chief trouble with the Tea Share market is that it is extremely limited. It responds quickly to a moderate amount of buying; but there is a tendency for it to dry up as soon as there is any general attempt to take profits, and for that reason the market does not lend itself readily to mere speculative operations. Investors who are prepared to hold Tea Shares for the sake of dividends, or to wait for profits until favourable opportunities occur, are safe enough in the market; but the profit-snatcher runs the risk at times of being disappointed.

INDUSTRIALS FEATURELESS

MOVEMENTS IN NARROW LIMITS.

Uninteresting conditions prevailed in the Miscellaneous and Industrial markets yesterday. Features were practically non-existent, movements being mostly confined to narrow limits, again revealing irregularity. Iron and Steels generally closed lower where changed, Ebbw Vale slipping back, though Mond Nickels exhibited firmness. Coal Shares were kept up and Gas Stocks were well maintained. Shipping issues hardly moved and Electrics were little dealt in. It is understood that underwriting has taken place for the issue of £700,000 5 p.c. Debs. of the British Insulated and Helsby Cables, Ltd. This issue is to replace £500,000 4½ p.c. First Mortgage Debs. and £200,000 5 p.c. Second Mortgage Debs. falling due for redemption. The feature of the Miscellaneous Trading section was the strength of Cements, which responded to a fair demand by rising 9d. to 15s. Crosse and Blackwells stiffened to 1s. 9d., though the Prefs. were slightly easier for choice. Dunlops were maintained at 7s. 3d. and the "A" Prefs. strengthened to 21s. Newspaper Shares had a firmer appearance, Daily Mirrors and Sunday Pictorials both closing 1/16 up at 5 5/16 and 3 5/16 respectively. Among Tobaccos, Imperials kept firm at 73s. 3d., though B.A.T. dropped 6d. to 105s. 9d. Some investors, it was said, have changed from B.A.T.'s to Imperials.

In the Brewery section, Allsopp Prefs. rose 1 to 75, though Distillers gave way to 2 1/16 on the dividend announcement. In Foodstuffs Maypole Def. came on offer and eased to 3s. 9d. Bovril Def. further improved to 40s. 6d. A fresh demand for British Electric Tractions raised the price 3 to 90, but among Canadian-American issues Mexico Trams fell that much to 21½ in sympathy with other Mexican issues. After opening at round about 5s. rather sellers, Imperial Airways came into demand, with the result that they rose to 7s., at which they closed a good market. The Marconi group kept up, Marines meeting with support and rising 1/16 to 1⅛. Among Textiles, Courtaulds suffered from realisations, losing 3d. at 59s. 1½d., while Listers dropped 6d. to 27s. Celanese issues held their ground. Dyestuffs Prefs. met with support and rose 6d. to 11d. 3d. Bank Shares maintained a firm appearance. National of Egypt rose ¼ to 25¼, and gains of 1/16 took place in Agricultural of Egypts to 7¼, in Chartered of Indias to 20, and in Westminsters to 17 11/16. Among Insurances Royals put on ⅛ to 26⅜. Land Shares displayed firmness; Bays moved up to 5 5/16 and Millars stiffened to 9s. 4½d. Sudan Plantations kept firm at 6 7/16, business taking place at up to 6 9/16. Among recent issues Beecham Prefs. were not so good at 7½ prem., though British Goodrich Rubbers Prefs. strengthened to 1s. 6d. dis.

EAST RAND REPORT.

FAVOURABLE DEVELOPMENTS.

A circular has been issued by the Johannesburg Board of the company, and according to the cabled text a rich strike has just been made in depth, profits have grown considerably, the outlook is materially improving, and—it is broadly hinted—a restart of dividends is coming into sight. The following is the official cable:—

The active programme of development, which was fully dealt with by the Chairman at the annual meeting held on 13th May last, has had a further gratifying result in the disclosures of good values at depth in the western section of the mine. The Driefontein incline shaft recently reached the plane of the 33rd level and a crosscut was put out to the reef, which was struck on 11th June. The main reef leader at the point of intersection shows visible gold carrying high values over a stoping width. As soon as reliable figures can be obtained the values will be communicated to the Press for the information of shareholders.

As compared with 1923, working costs have been reduced during the first five months of the current year by 1/2 per ton milled, and working profits have amounted to £60,050, as compared with working losses totalling £17,200 for the first five months of 1923. The outlook of the company is now materially improving as a direct result of the intensive development policy which has been pursued since the reorganisation following the strike in 1922, and although the stage has not yet been reached at which the Board can consider the payment of a dividend, shareholders may rest assured that every endeavour is being made to place the company again on a dividend-paying basis.

The Board is hopeful that a continuation of the present development policy will bring about the desired result.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANS LESS ABUNDANT.

FRANCS RECOVERING.

With market resources depleted by repayments of ways and means advances to the bank, Lombard street found credit much less abundant yesterday, and, while old loans were renewed at 2 p.c., fresh borrowers as a rule had to pay 1½ p.c. for accommodation over the night, against 1½ p.c. on Tuesday. Weekly fixtures went on at 2½ p.c., there being no evidence of any business in seven-day loans below that figure. For advances over the end of the month the general charge was 3 p.c. In the discount market rates reflected the harder tendency of money, and were quoted a shade higher all round. Actual business, however, remained very quiet. Fine three months' bills were offered at 2 15/16 p.c., and the new Treasuries at 2⅞ p.c., August bills being 2 13/16-2⅞ p.c.

Bank Rate (Discount) changed July 5, 1923, 4%.

The price of gold was unchanged at 95s. 6d. per oz. Bar silver rose ⅛d. to 35d. per oz. for spot and 34⅞d. for forward delivery.

Business was quiet in the foreign exchange market, and francs, which opened at 81.50, subsequently recovered to 80.55-80.65. Belgian francs moved in sympathy to 92¼-92⅜, after touching 93¼. The political crisis in Italy caused the lira further to deteriorate to 100, the rate rallying later to 99⅝. Sterling on New York was not so good at 4.32⅛-4.32⅛ dollars, while Dutch florins appreciated to 11.54-11.54½. Spanish pesetas continued on offer, being 32.27-32.29, while Switzerland was a little firmer at 24.44-24.46. There was a general set-back in South American exchanges, apart from Rio, which strengthened to 5 11/16-5 23/32. Buenos Ayres weakened to 40⅞-41, Uruguay to 42⅝-42⅞, and Valparaiso to 40-30. Rupees were easier at 1s. 5d.-1s. 5 1/16d., and Japanese yen further recovered to 1s. 10 13/16d.-1s. 10 15/16d. The following are closing quotations:—

FERMANAGH POTEEN CASES.

POLICEMAN GIVES EXPERT EVIDENCE.

At Enniskillen last Tuesday, Robert Graham, Derryhooley, was fined £5 for having less than half a glass of poteen in his possession. The defendant pleaded that he bought it in Ballyconnell, over the border, because no one caught him there. It was for a sick cow.

A bottle of spirit was produced in a charge against Thomas McGurn, Kilnakelly. It was contended for the defence that the bottle contained methylated spirits and water. A policeman, however, swore that the bottle contained poteen. He was an expert, as he used to make poteen in County Monaghan himself. The case was adjourned for an analysis.

Michael Gunn, aged 95, was also charged with being in possession of poteen. The magistrate remarked that the spirit took the varnish off his desk. Policeman—It is a nice mild poteen, a very good sample. The defendant was fined £10.

James L. Graham, Derryhooley, a Special constable, was also fined £10 for having bottles which contained a few drops of poteen.

HOUSEHOLDER'S RESPONSIBILITY.

John Lordon, aged 83, Farnalough, was fined £100, with a recommendation that it be reduced to £40, at Bandon, County Cork, in respect of a quantity of poteen and an illicit still, which was found in his house on May 13th.

It was pleaded that the defendant was not connected with the manufacture of poteen, but the magistrate said that the case was proved by the articles found in the house. If a man was not able to control his own dwelling he should call in the police. The defendant was given a month in which to pay.

July most affected. Maize options closed unchanged; October sold 7/- per cental.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Wednesday.—BACON—Irish bacon continues scarce, and firmly held, and Danish again in fair demand at further enhanced prices of 110/- to 114/- per cwt. Canadian Wiltshires firm but quiet at late rates. The market for American bacon here shows little new feature, holders being encouraged by the further advance in Danish ask fully late rates for all selections, with a slightly improved inquiry on the whole, Wiltshires and Cumberlands attracting most attention. HAMS firm, and demand improving, long cut being again dearer at 82/- to 89/- per cwt. from relative scarcity. Shoulders rule steady at late rates for New Yorks and squares, but picnics easier. LARD on the spot is steady at the recent advance, but buyers again operate merely for their actual needs. CHEESE firmly held for recent currencies, with a moderate business reported. BUTTER again fairly active, and the recent advance fully maintained for all makes. EGGS continue steady, but quiet, at 13/3 to 13/9 for Irish hen, and 13/- to 13/3 duck per 120.
